$200,000 Blaze Damages Big Pier At Atlantic City

Landmark Is Destroyed Near Shore End of Structure; Closed Labor Day

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 13 (AP)—A $200,000 fire ripped through 300 feet of the famed Million Dollar Pier early today.

The well-known landmark, which juts 1,900 feet into the ocean on the downtown section of the boardwalk, caught fire about 4:30 a. m. A northeast wind blew roaring flames down the beach away from boardwalk hotels.

The pier's huge ballroom, near the shore end, was gutted completely. Twisted roof girders fell in the blaze. Fire Chief Rex Farley set the damage estimate at $200,000.

The long pleasure palace was closed on Labor Day for the winter.

No one was injured. Walter Merchant and his bride of three weeks, Florence, were helped down a ladder to the beach by police from their living quarters about midway out the pier. Merchant is a bookkeeper for the firm that operates the pier.

The resort's fire department brought special high pressure equipment into play. The hose lines were run from the high pressure boardwalk system, independent from the rest of the city. It had been installed for just such an emergency.

Firemen also used Atlantic City's "deluge tower," a huge, 100-foot-high hose carrier, which spews out almost 10 times as much water as an ordinary fire hose, and under high pressure.

These special measures enabled the hardworking firemen to contain the blaze in a relatively small shoreward section of the pier.

Despite the early hour, thousands of curious townsfolk turned out to watch the spectacle. The flames lit the sky for many miles. Police roped off the area to keep spectators back.

The Million Dollar Pier is the second largest in Atlantic City, next to the Steel Pier. It is owned by Associated Realty, Inc., an Atlantic City firm, and is leased to operators. This year, a firm headed by George Costello, who owns a New York city ferry service, leased the pier.

Built in 1906 by Capt. John L. Young, the pier once was a wonder for its size and construction. Through the years, it has remained a landmark of the resort.

When the pier was constructed, Capt. Young built himself a house about halfway out the long structure.

He gave his address as No. 1, Atlantic Ocean.

Line Is Accused

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—The chairman of a Senate subcommittee investigating Communist spies accused the Polish-owned Gdynia-America Line today of "activities contrary to the interest of the United States." The line owns the passenger ship Batory on which Communist Leader Gerhard Eisler fled this country last spring. Officials of the line, owned by the Soviet-dominated Polish government, were questioned by the committee behind closed doors. Senator, O'Conor (D-Md.), acting chairman, said their testimony probably will be made public later.

Violation Is Cited

Athens, Sept. 13 (AP)—The United Nations Special Commission on the Balkans said today Greek troops violated the Albanian border in acts of "justifiable self-defense." A commission report released today said the incidents occurred during fighting in the Grammos region. It also confirmed a Greek general staff claim that Albanian soldiers entered and fought on Greek soil during these operations. Greek forces "undoubtedly" violated the Albanian frontier, the report said.

Steel Strike Threat Is Off for 11 Days Because of Truce

Steelworkers Also Accept Recommendations of Fact-Finders Even to 4th Round

Pittsburgh, Sept. 13 (AP)—There won't be any steel strike for the next 11 days—and maybe not then.

Chances look bright as the autumn sunshine for peaceful solution of the steel wage dispute that threatened to tie the nation in economic knots.

The C.I.O. United Steelworkers and six major steel producers have agreed to an 11-day extension of the strike truce sought by President Truman.

That truce begins at midnight tonight—the hour originally set for the nationwide steel walkout. It will continue until Sept. 25.

The steelworkers also accepted the recommendations of the President's steel fact findings board—even though it meant giving up a fourth round of wage increases.

The men who make steel will have to be satisfied with the average $1.65 an hour they now receive. The union won three increases totaling 46 cents since the end of World War II.

Maurice J. Tobin, secretary of labor, predicted the steelworkers' acceptance of the board findings will result in "national prosperity such as this country has rarely known."

Tobin made the prediction at Kansas City where he spoke at a building dedication.

No Truman Comment

President Truman made no immediate comment on the C.I.O. action. But a top White House associate said the President regards the agreement won in the steel controversy as a forerunner of widespread peaceful settlements in other industrial disputes.

The advisor said Mr. Truman expects the union and the steel companies to reach a speedy settlement based on the formula concocted by his board.

The first steel company to reply after the unions' position was announced was Republic Steel Corporation of Cleveland. Republic, the nation's third largest steel producer, said it is willing to bargain pensions with a view to completing a study of the problem by March 1, 1950.

Refusal of the industry to grant wages or talk pensions brought about the labor crisis that threatened a strike last July 15. The strike was averted, at the last minute by appointment of the three-man fact finding board.

Five other major steel producers—including the giant United States Steel Corporation—have not yet replied to the board recommendations.

The steel industry originally opposed creation of the board and was particularly bitter about its

Slavs Dare Russia to Go Before U.N.

Yugoslavia Will Lose Nothing, Tito Aide Says in Newspaper Article

Lesson Is Read

Premier Says He Plans to Build Socialism Minus Coaching

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Sept. 13 (AP)—Yugoslavia dared Russia today to take her complaints against this country to the United Nations.

Moshe Pijade one of Premier Marshal Tito's top-ranking spokesmen, said in an article in the official newspaper, Borba:

"Yugoslavia will have nothing to lose."

Pijade's blast, latest broadside in the war of words between the Kremlin and Tito's regime, was touched off by an article in the Russian foreign policy weekly, News Times, which had accused Yugoslavia of duplicity in her dealings with neighbor Albania.

Pijade, former newspaperman and author who is the Yugoslav party's top theorist, termed the charge of the Cominform (Communist International information bureau) that Tito is plotting with Greece to carve up Albania, a "ridiculous and slanderous" accusation.

The article said the Russian claim that Yugoslavia sold out the cause of the Communist-led Greek guerrilla rebels amounted to nothing more than a plain lie. It said the Soviet-dominated Cominform propaganda "poisons the European atmosphere."

Yugoslavia has sent to New York a powerful U.N. delegation headed by Foreign Minister Edvard Kardelj, for the assembly session opening Sept. 20.

Tito meanwhile, has read Russia a lesson from her own history books, warning he intends to build socialism in one country without coaching from the Kremlin. "Socialism in one country" once was the announced goal of Premier Stalin.

Tito told champion coal miners he was taking the same kind of stand against Moscow "interference" in Yugoslavia affairs that V. I. Lenin, Soviet Russia's founder took when he clashed with Leon Trotsky over building socialism (communism) in Russia after World War I.

"We must clear this matter up," said Tito, in a speech made public yesterday by the Information Ministry, "and say—as Lenin said to Trotsky—it is possible to build socialism in one country."

There has been no comment yet from Belgrade on a Moscow radio

Dulles to Travel To Albany, Accept G.O.P. Nomination

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—Senator John Foster Dulles will come to Albany Thursday to accept the Republican nomination for senator.

He holds the seat now by interim appointment of Governor Dewey.

Dulles, 61, veteran foreign affairs authority, will be nominated by the Republican state committee Thursday afternoon. He will accept formally and make his first campaign address that night at a G.O.P. rally in the Ten Eyck Hotel. The address will be broadcast by ABC.

Dulles will run Nov 8 against former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, the Democratic-Liberal candidate, who also is to be nominated Thursday.

The winner will serve, until Jan 3, 1951, the remainder of the term of Democrat Robert F. Wagner, who resigned July 28 because of ill health.

Brennan Boy's Age May Ease Penalty for Mother in Trial

Dover, Del., Sept. 13 (AP)—The age of one defendant in Delaware's lonely hearts murder trial may rule out the possibility of a death sentence for a plump widow and her 16-year-old son.

Mrs. Inez Brennan, 45-year-old brunette, and her son, Robert, went on trial yesterday. The youth is accused of shooting to death Wade N. Wooldrige, 67, of Stone Mountain, Va., while the state contends Mrs. Brennan ordered her son to kill Wooldrige for his money.

Under Delaware law an accomplice can receive no greater penalty than the principal in a murder case. Traditionally, convicted slayers under 18 have seldom been hanged in Delaware—the state's method of execution.

Attorney general Albert W. James made no mention of the death penalty in his opening remarks to the jury of ten men and two women.

The state did ask for a first degree murder verdict against the Brennan boy and his mother. The jury could recommend either death by hanging or life imprisonment in returning such a verdict but the court would not be bound by a recommendation of clemency.

The body of Wooldrige was found on a Dover city dump last April. State police said Mrs. Brennan and Robert in several statements told them they first buried Wooldrige, a carpenter, in a pigpen on the Brennan farm, later burning the body and reburying it in the dump.

The two Brennans also told in their statements, state police said, of shooting Hugo Schulz, 61, on his Concord, N. H., farm,

Adenauer Is Strong Man Of Germany

Chancellorship Seems Assured; Discloses Power of Coalition He Heads

Heuss Is Scored

East Berlin Papers Call President 'Wall Street' Governor

Bonn, Germany, Sept. 13 (AP)—Dr. Konrad Adenauer appeared firmly in the saddle today as the strong man of western Germany's new federal republic.

Yesterday's election of Prof. Theodor Heuss as president assured Adenauer of the chancellorship and demonstrated the power of the three-party coalition which he heads.

President Heuss will send a letter to Adenauer tomorrow morning or early afternoon asking him to assume the post of chancellor (prime minister), according to well informed sources.

A full meeting of the Parliament's lower House is scheduled for 6 p. m. German time (1 a. m. E.S.T.) tomorrow to confirm the nominations.

The 73-year-old Adenauer heads the Christian Democratic Union, strongest party in the right-wing coalition.

It was the Christian Democratic vote that won the presidency for Heuss who leads the coalition's second strongest party, the Free Democrats.

The results was victory for the combined Adenauer-Heuss forces over the Socialist opposition. The Socialists, supporting Chairman Dr. Kurt Schumacher, set out to make the election a test of strength but they lasted only one round.

Heuss was elected on the second ballot with 416 out of 800.

This left Adenauer in clear control, backed by a majority in the Parliament, the president and the coalition cabinet he will form.

When the August election gave Adenauer's party a plurality in Parliament he worked out the coalition with the Free Democrats and the German Party which gave him a scant majority.

Impressed by the force of the rightist coalition, a small band of West German Communists appealed last night to the socialists to join them in a common front against "reactionaries."

So far the Communist did for alliance has been ignored by the socialists who are bitterly anti-Communist.

Heuss Is Assailed

Berlin, Sept. 13 (AP)—Communist-inspired East Berlin newspapers today assailed West Germany's new president, Dr. Theodor Heuss.

The Red army's Taegliche Rundschau called him "Wall Street's Governor" and accused him of having once been a Nazi sympathizer.

Syracuse to Drop Tax

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—The city of Syracuse will discontinue its one per cent sales and use tax next February 28. The Common Council voted yesterday to end collections on that date. Syracuse began collecting a two per cent sales tax in 1948 under a state law permitting cities to impose so-called "nuisance" taxes to pay teachers salary increases and other education costs. The city cut the tax rate to one per cent, effective last March.

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—The position of the Treasury Sept. 9: Net budget receipts $124,244,564.31; budget expenditures $108,332,904.96; cash balance $4,042,644,064.32; customs receipts for month $9,069,981.63; budget receipts fiscal year July 1 $5,071,374,448.83; budget expenditures fiscal year $8,376,162,405.98; budget deficit $3,304,787,957.65; total debt $256,506,988,038.27 increase over previous day $10,241,474.91. Child Goes Home

Joan Hinkley, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Hinkley of 21 Franklin street, returned to her home from the Kingston Hospital. She had been undergoing treatment for a fractured jaw and lacerations received in an automobile accident Friday night at Esopus, according to a state police report.

Crossing Peril Soon Will Be Ended

Kingstonians can rejoice that the dangers at the Broadway crossing of the West Shore Railroad soon will be a thing of the past, if successful bids are received by the State Department of Public Works. The state anticipates the expenditure of approximately $910,000 for the elimination of this hazard and will seek bids Oct. 5. The above photograph was taken after the fatal crash March 4, 1918, when a northbound train and a trolley car collided. Two persons were killed and 15 were injured. Patrolman John Boyd died several days later of his injuries, which included a punctured lung. The Freeman is indebted to Fred C. Hahn of 9 Van Deusen avenue, this city, for this photograph which the former baseball umpire found in his attic. The automobile in the picture is an old vintage Maxwell.

St. Anne's Convent Purchases Adjoining Terry Property

House Will Be Used for Guests; Garage to Be Made Into Chapel

The Convent of St Anne today announced the purchase of the adjourning David Terry residence at 293 Broadway for use as a guest house.

At St. Anne's Convent this morning the Mother Superior reported that the buildings on the Terry property will be retained and the main house used as a guest house, filling a need long felt by the convent authorities. She said that eventually they may convert the garage, a well constructed old coach house, into a chapel.

The present convent property at 287 Broadway was acquired for use as a convent in 1925. Besides the need for more room, the Mother Superior also gave as a reason for the purchase the possibility that at some future date, if the property were not acquired by them, it might be purchased for commercial use, which could be detrimental to the setting of the convent.

The Terry property, located at the corner of Broadway and Orchard street, has long been a familiar landmark in Kingston with its red brick house set back some distance from Broadway.

The property was originally owned by the late William Ostrander, grandfather of David Terry, present occupant. In 1865 Albert Terry, father of David Terry, purchased the lot and built the present structure after moving the old house to a lot on Orchard street. The house built by Albert Terry has stood since then and has been continuously occupied by the Terry family, founders of the Terry Brothers Company, brick manufacturers.

Four Are Assured Of Court Election

Schirick, Bergan, MacAffer and Wheeler Okayed by Both Parties

(By The Associated Press)

Four candidates were assured today of election to the New York State Supreme Court bench Nov. 8 after receiving both Republican and Democratic endorsement.

The four were among seven nominated for the $23,000-a-year posts at party conventions in four upstate judicial districts yesterday. The term of Supreme Court justice is for 14 years.

In Albany, both major parties endorsed Kenneth S. MacAffer, Albany county Republican chairman, for a new seat in the Third District. The seat was created by the 1949 Legislature and raised the number in the district to eight.

Justice Harry E. Schirick of Kingston and Francis Bergan of Albany also were nominated by both parties for re-election in the third district. Both are Democrats. The district embraces Albany, Columbia, Greene, Rensselaer, Schoharie, Sullivan and Ulster counties.

In Rochester, Republicans and Democrats nominated Justice John C. Wheeler of Corning for re-election in the Seventh District, comprising Cayuga, Livingston, Monroe, Seneca, Steuben, Wayne and Yates counties.

At Binghamton, A. E. Gold, former Supreme Court Justice and onetime Broome county district attorney, was nominated by Democrats of the Sixth District.

Republicans meet tonight at Binghamton to select their nominee to fill a vacancy created by the retirement of Justice William F. Santry of Oneida.

Counties in the Sixth District are Chemung, Tioga, Broome, Chenango, Otsego, Delaware, Madison, Schuyler, Tompkins and Cortland.

In Syracuse, Justice E. Howard Ringrose of Rome and Judge William E. McClusky of Syracuse Municipal Court were named by Republicans in the Fifth District.

Ringrose was appointed to the court by Governor Dewey last Dec 15 to complete the term of the late Justice James T. Closs of Rome. The term expires Dec 31.

McClusky was nominated for an extra seat created by this year's Legislature. The new seat brought to 10 the number in the district, made up of Onondaga, Lewis, Jefferson, Oswego, Oneida and Herkimer counties.

Fifth District Democrats meet in Syracuse Friday to select nominees.

Democrats Fail To Unseat Plunket At County Meeting

Report Is Former Mayor Edelmuth Is Being Considered for Albany Post

All was peace and quiet at the organization meeting of the Ulster county Democratic committee Monday evening at the court house. Opposition, which had been predicted by several members of the party, did not develop and Thomas J. Plunket was unanimously reelected county chairman.

Former Mayor William F. Edelmuth, who seconded the nomination of Plunket for county chairman, was presented before the meeting as a possible candidate for lieutenant governor of the state, reference to the designation being made by Francis Martocci, Democratic candidate for city judge of Kingston and by Raymond Garraghan who placed the name of James H. Betts before the meeting for the office of treasurer of the county committee.

In presenting the name of Edelmuth before the Ulster county Democrats, Martocci said that he had traveled quite extensively throughout the state and had learned that Edelmuth held a reputation of quite some prominence throughout the state. In New York this was particularly true and he said he had been informed that Edelmuth was being considered as a possible candidate for the high state office of lieutenant governor by his party. Garraghan later urged the Democrats of Ulster county to get behind the move and work for the nomination of Edelmuth for the state office.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman Thomas J.

Pennsylvania Election Is Trial Run on 1950 Voting

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—A trial run on the 1950 congressional campaign gets underway with (1) voting today in a special election in Pennsylvania and (2) the official designation of senatorial candidates in New York Thursday.

In what is regarded as an indicator of trends, voters in Pennsylvania's 26th Congressional District are picking a successor to Rep. Robert L. Coffey, Jr., war hero killed in a plane crash last spring.

Their choice lies between Coffey's mother, Mrs. Ethel Coffey, a Democrat, and John P. Saylor, Republican, a war veteran and Johnstown lawyer.

Involved is a strategy battle that may influence the pattern of next year's fight for control of Congress. Democrats are trying to weld labor and farm votes, bearing down heavily on repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act. Republicans are attacking what they call the Truman administration's drift toward the "socialist-inspired welfare state."

New York state's preview of next year's campaign gets underway with the designation of major party candidates in 1949's only special senate race.

Democrats will ratify Thursday their choice of former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman for senator, with the Liberal party adding its nomination. Lehman will run as a strong supporter of President Truman's domestic and foreign policies.

The same day the Republicans will pick John Foster Dulles, now serving as senator by appointment of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, to lead a campaign that will be directed primarily at the President's domestic proposals.

Henry A. Wallace made his expected decision yesterday not to

Boost Seen To Exports, If Followed

Document Puts Light on Anglo Problem, Adds Pressure to Past Suggestions

Would Cut Prices

British Goods Would Be Less Costly, if Plan Were Adopted

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—The international monetary fund today advised dollar-short countries to devalue their currencies, if need be, to boost their dollar-earning exports.

Without singling out the British pound but with Britain's dollar crisis obviously in mind, the report was laid before the opening session of the fourth annual meeting of the boards of governors of the multi-billion dollar fund and World Bank.

Shortly thereafter, the financial leaders of the 48 member nations were to hear an off-the-cuff address by President Truman.

It may be better for a country to change an "unsuitable" exchange rate than to clamp on restrictions which "endanger its well-being and efficiency," said the report of the fund's executive directors.

Although the document referred to all "deficit nations," its effect was to spotlight the British problem—and to add pressure to numerous past suggestions for sterling devaluation.

The impact was the greater because a cabinet level British-U. S.-Canadian conference ended yesterday with agreement on a ten-point treatment for Britain's dollar ills—without including revaluation of the pound as one of the points.

The pound's value now is $4.03. Its devaluation, in foreign trade, would amount to lowering the price of British goods.

Many American officials have forecast privately that Britain must finally adopt that course, which so far she has shunned. But officially at least, the finance and foreign ministers of the three nations did not raise the issue in the week-long talks.

Instead, the United States and Canada agreed on these lines of immediate relief:

1. More choice for Britain in deciding where to spend Marshall Plan dollars. 2. Easier customs entry for British goods. 3. Larger purchases of British tin and rubber. 4. Agreement that Britain may have to discriminate against U. S. and Canadian goods to conserve dollars, subject to Congress' will.

As longer-range measures, these other points met agreement: The speeding of overseas investment; a U. S. promise to seek further tariff cuts; a study of burdensome British war debts; an attempt to improve British earnings from oil; the same for shipping; and finally, a continuing, three-power review of Britain's economic ills.

This done, Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin moved on to their own discussion of new western moves in the cold war.

The finance ministers — Sir Stafford Cripps, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, and Canadian Finance Minister Douglas Abbott—turned to the bank and fund meeting.

Subject Is Avoided

And there the carefully-avoided subject of devaluation was opened up wide, in the report of the fund's executive directors.

Presented by Managing Director Camille Gutt, of Belgium, to the assembled governors, and applying equally to Britain and the other war-ravaged economies of Europe, it declared:

1. Expansion of Europe's exports to the western hemisphere — particularly to the United States—is a key to the world's problem of payments.

2. The high prices of European goods makes it difficult for them to compete in the American market with U. S.-made goods. Europe's opportunities to narrow the gap by cutting profits or costs are limited.

3. "Where a price reduction of the magnitude indicated . . . is necessary to expand exports, it would in many cases seem pos-

Polio Death Toll Passes 200 Mark

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—The polio death toll for the year passed the 200 mark in New York state today.

The State Health Department reported eight new deaths, raising the 1949 total to 204. It also listed 73 new cases, of which 29 were in New York city and 44 in other counties.

The totals compared with six deaths and 70 new cases reported for the state yesterday. Both day's statistics, however, contained delayed reports of deaths.

Only three of the deaths reported today occurred in a 24-hour period ended at noon. The other five were in August.

The case total for the year rose to 3,290.

New York city has had 150 of the 204 deaths and 1,789 of the cases reported. Elsewhere in the state, there have been 54 deaths and 1,501 cases reported since Jan. 1.

Seven of the eight newly reported deaths occurred in Nassau county, but only two in the 24 hours covered by today's noon bulletin. The other new case was reported from Columbia county.

Eight of the 44 cases outside of New York city also were reported from Nassau county. Six new cases were listed in Warren county. Broome, Cattaraugus and Erie counties reported four new cases each, and Westchester three.

The department listed these leading case totals by counties outside of New York city for the year:

Erie 246, Nassau 227, Suffolk 146, Westchester 140, Washington 98 and Warren 68. Other cases were scattered.

Boy Accused in Shooting

Huntington, W. Va., Sept. 13 (AP)—A 14-year-old Kentucky schoolboy was held in jail here today after he told state police he shot his mother to death while she lay sleeping in their Sharondale, Ky., home. A state trooper quoted the sixth grader as saying his mother had occasionally beaten him with a poker.

Potato Crop Is Less

Boston, Sept. 13 (AP)—Due to heat and drouth, New England's potato crop today was estimated down 18 per cent from last year but nine per cent above the 10-year average. The crop reporting service of the Federal Agriculture Department looked for 68,455,000 bushels compared with 93,965,000 bushels in 1948.

Willard Freeman, 41, Dies of His Wounds

Canton, Sept. 13 (AP)—Willard Freeman, 41, American businessman from Bridgewater, Mass., died today of gunshot wounds suffered in his suburban home last Thursday.

His was the second death in the mysterious shooting. Harold Harris, 45, a British trader, was killed instantly. Leonard Clark, 42, San Francisco explorer, was wounded in the chest but will recover.

The trio fell victims of a .32 calibre pistol after a friendly drinking party that ended in a fight.

Chinese police today said they had "100 per cent proof" of who did the shooting. There has been no arrest.

Freeman's attractive widow, Maya, 33, said she slept through the fight and shooting in an adjoining room. She said high winds prevented her from hearing the gunfire after she retired.

Neither Freeman nor Clark was aware that Harris died in the affray.

Police had not told Clark of Freeman's death today. The explorer was in a room some 15 feet away from Freeman's hospital room. Clark has said he found the world's tallest mountain in northwest China recently.

Injunction Is Granted

Chicago, Sept. 13 (AP)—A temporary injunction restraining the F.C.C. from banning give-away programs on the air was granted today by Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe. The stay order will prevent the Federal Communications Commission ban from going into effect October 1 as scheduled. The injunction will remain in effect until a suit attacking the ban is decided in a Federal Court in New York. This suit was filed by the C.B.S., A.B.C. and N.B.C.

Late Bulletin

Darien, Conn., Sept. 13 (AP)—Police said today that the discovery of a newspaper clipping in an automobile had turned what appeared to be a routine arrest into an investigation of a child abandonment case.

Two men and two women, found in a parked automobile here early today, were booked as vagrants when police discovered they were without funds.

A subsequent examination of the automobile turned up a clipping from last Sunday's edition of The New York Mirror, showing a picture of a four-year-old abandoned girl at the Children's Shelter, East 105th street, New York.

Questioning of the four under arrest, reported Police Lieutenant Frank J. Standing, led to a statement by Grace Etringer, 31, of 991 Putnam avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., that the child was her four-year-old daughter, Kathleen. Standing quoted her as saying she had left the child several days ago with a woman whom she knew only slightly, promising to return for her in an hour, but did not go back. The woman subsequently brought Kathleen to the Children's Shelter.

New York city police were notified and said they would come here to question Miss Etringer.

Lieutenant Standing said Miss Etringer told him Kathleen was one of three children born to her out of wedlock. The other two are with her mother, he said.

Miss Etringer's companions were booked as Doris Carr, 21, of the same Brooklyn address as Miss Etringer, Robert Wise, 35, of 114 East 14th street, New York, and Clare Gordon, 32, of Ellenville, N. Y. The later was charged with operating an automobile without a license.

Cause of Crash Remains Unknown

Exact cause of a fatal motorcycle accident in this city Saturday morning remains unknown, investigating authorities reported today.

Coroner Ernest A. Kelly said that Samuel Wood, 35, of 156 Hunter street, a passenger on the motorcycle, was unable to furnish many details since he was "hiding behind the driver" to protect himself from the biting wind. Wood told authorities that he was not sure exactly what happened, except that there was a crash, Coroner Kelly said.

Wood was taken to Kingston Hospital with a compound fracture of the right leg, police said. His condition this morning was reported as "fair."

Killed in the accident was Carl Terjung, 20, of Brooklyn, driver of the cycle. Coroner Kelly said an autopsy disclosed he died of injuries which included a fractured neck and ruptured aorta.

Chief of Police Raymond Van Buren said today nothing new had been uncovered by the investigation. A report that the motorcycle had been racing with an unidentified automobile has not been substantiated up to the present time.

Wallkill Escapees Caught by Police

Two prisoners who walked away from the Wallkill Medium Security Prison on June 27 have both been picked up by state police from the Horseheads, N. Y. barracks. While a gang of prisoners was working on the prison farm Jack Mote, 19, of Buffalo, and Robert Landon, 20, of Elmira, walked off. A guard who was in charge of the gang observed them go but was unable to leave his other charges. He gave the alarm.

Shortly after a truck was stolen from Montgomery and Troopers at Ferndale saw the truck and halted it. The driver, who was believed to be one of the escaped prisoners, left the truck and disappeared. Troopers fired at the man but he made good his escape.

Mote, sent up for a two and one-half year term from Erie county on assault, second degree, charge was picked up this morning by the troopers. Landon, sentenced to a five-year term from Elmira for burglary at Geneseo, was picked up by Horseheads troopers last Friday and had been returned to prison. Both men had been at Wallkill only a couple of weeks when they walked off.

Gardiner Caucus Picks Denniston

The usual peace and harmony prevailed at the town of Gardiner caucus of the Republican party held last evening Roy F. Denniston, present supervisor from the town, was named to succeed himself. Louis Denton was named as the party's candidate for town superintendent; Richard Deyo Borcherding for collector and Raymond V. DuBois and John G Otis for assessors.

There was no opposition to any of the candidates About 100 members attended the caucus. No nominations were offered for town clerk or justices of the peace.

This evening the Democratic caucus will be held and it is expected that party will name candidates for town clerk and also justices.

Democrats Fail

Plunkett and the roll call followed.

Plunkett then retired and called upon Secretary William A. Kelly to preside.

Kelly called for nominations for county chairman and Herbert George of Denning nominated Plunkett, saying that his observations were that Plunkett had been very active throughout the county, was liked and respected by all and he considered it a great honor to present the name of Plunkett to succeed himself.

Former Mayor Edelmuth then seconded the nomination, endorsing all that Mr. George had said and the nomination was then seconded by a dozen other committeemen from the city and county.

Nominations were closed and Kelly cast the unanimous ballot of the members for Plunkett as county chairman. Edelmuth and George escorted Plunkett to the chair.

Chairman Plunkett then resumed his duties and after thanking the committeemen for the honor he called upon all committeemen and members of the Democratic party to support the candidates and he predicted that if they did give their undivided support the party would go on to victory in the city of Kingston in November and also in several of the towns of the county.

Francis J. O'Neil, candidate for mayor, and Francis Martocci, candidate for city judge, were then presented and spoke on the coming election, predicting victory for the party.

Raymond Garraghan placed the name of James H. Betts before the meeting for the office of treasurer and there were several seconds. Mr. Betts, who was absent, was unanimously elected.

James Plunkett, Democratic candidate for district attorney, was recognized and urged all town committeemen to see that they had a full town ticket in every town on election day. This he said lent to the strength of the party.

The name of William A. Kelly was presented by Patrick T. Murphy of the Tenth ward as candidate for secretary to succeed himself. The nomination was seconded by Joseph Epstein and the election was unanimous.

Larry Quilty, assistant to Treasurer Betts, spoke briefly on the finances of the party.

Secretary Kelly spoke briefly on absentee ballots, central registration and service votes and urged that an effort be made to get out first voters and to see that all voters went out to cast their vote on election day.

The meeting then adjourned.

run on the American Labor Party slate. Republicans had hoped that the former vice president would make the race, and thereby take some Democratic votes away from Lehman.

Senator Ives (R-N. Y.) fired some preliminary shots in the Republicans' New York drive in a speech at Buffalo yesterday.

Noting that the President had scoffed at "statism" and "socialism" as scare words, Ives said the program Mr. Truman is advocating would seem to follow very closely the disastrous pattern of the present British socialistic system."

"Even if in the election of last November the President received a mandate to this end from the small minority of potential voters in this country who supported him," Ives said, "I feel sure that the vast majority of the American people are still opposed to socialism and have nothing but contempt for the welfare state."

Ives praised the middle road stand he said had been taken by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. The New York senator has said previously he thinks Eisenhower's name will be placed before the next Republican presidential nominating convention.

Former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, another potential G.O.P. presidential candidate, also got into the argument about socialism.

Stassen, who heads the University of Pennsylvania, announced that he will report to the Republican party the results of a personal survey of how the British system works. He will return in October, in time for publicizing his findings before the November New York vote.

Editor Is Convicted

Tokyo, Sept. 13 (AP)—Eun Muam, Korean editor of the New Asia Press Service, was convicted today of circulating "news stories which were not factually true." He was sentenced by a U. S. Provost Court to two years in prison. He was tried under the occupation's press code for Japan.

Eun was the first editor in Japan to be convicted by an occupation court on the basis of stories from abroad. His source was the Communist Pyongyang Radio in northern Korea.

Cold Front Moves East Along Coast; Warnings Posted

(By The Associated Press)

A cold front moved eastward across the plains states and high winds and rain whipped wide areas along the Middle Atlantic coastal region today.

The mass of cold air from northwest Canada centered in the western Dakotas, western Nebraska and northeastern Montana early today. Temperatures throughout the region were below freezing. Skies generally were clear, but there was rain over much of the midwest area. Frost and freezing temperatures were forecast for parts of the north central states tonight.

Storm warnings were posted from Nantucket, Mass., to the North Carolina coast as a wind-rain storm moved up the Atlantic coast from Cape Hatteras, N. C. The cold air from the midwest was expected to extend into the eastern states Wednesday night.

The southern states reported warm weather and temperatures along the Pacific coast were around normal. The mercury climbed into the 90's in Texas yesterday.

19 Organizations Join Social Agency

Membership in the Ulster County Council of Social Agencies has increased to 19 participating health, welfare and recreational groups, it was announced at a meeting of the council Monday night at the city laboratory.

With additional members coming in and details of organization still incomplete, the delegates approved the recommendation of the nominating committee to delay election of permanent officers until September 29 at 10 a. m., when the group will meet at the Y.W.C.A.

Present temporary officers were asked to serve until the new officers are elected. Albert Kurdt is temporary chairman and Miss Esther A. Schisa is temporary secretary. At Monday's meeting, Miss Clare M. Kelley was appointed acting secretary in the absence of Miss Schisa, who is on vacation.

It was voted at the meeting to send copies of the newly-revised proposed by-laws to each member organization for study before the next meeting, at which time they will be presented for adoption.

Organizations which have joined the Council of Social Agencies since its last meeting in June were reported to be the Salvation Army, Kingston Boys Club and the Red Cross.

Harkin to Speak At Scout Kick-Off

The Ulster-Greene Council, Boy Scouts of America, annual campaign for operating funds will be inaugurated in Kingston at the M.J.M. School auditorium 8 p. m., Wednesday, Chairman John J. Schwenk announced today. The campaign will begin on September 15. This so-called "kick-off" meeting will bring together all the campaign committee captains and workers throughout the city and county. Canvassing material and complete information for conducting the campaign will be given to all workers.

The guest speaker of the evening will be Lt. Col. Frank W. Harkin, commanding officer of the 156th Field Artillery Battalion, New York National Guard, and director of military science at Napanoch Institution for Male Defective Delinquents.

All captains are requested to have their workers present at this meeting, Chairman Schwenk stated. The executive committee hopes to conduct a speedy campaign and asked the support of every citizen in the community. All interested persons are cordially invited.

Maida Heatter Married

Freeport, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—Miss Maida Heatter, daughter of Radio Commentator Gabriel Heatter and Mrs. Heatter, was married today to Ellis A. Gimbel, Jr., son of the board chairman of the Gimbel Bros. department stores. The ceremony was performed in the home of the bride's parents by Judge Hilbert Johnson of Freeport. The bridegroom is a partner in Gimbel & Co., a member of the New York Stock Exchange. After a Bermuda honeymoon the couple will live in Freeport.

Rosendale Caucus

Rosendale, Sept. 13—The Republican party caucus for the Town of Rosendale is scheduled for tonight at 8 o'clock, and all enrolled voters of that political faith are urged to attend, according to the town committee. Outcome of the party contest for committeemen in the second election district follows: Fred Randegger, 42; John Seladi, 32; George W. Brown, 69; Edward Brodsky, 62.

'Enemy' Wiped Out

Nuernberg, Germany, Sept. 13 (AP)—Airpower has already wiped out the enemy in the U. S. field maneuvers in West Germany, umpires announced today. But the problem will go on anyway to its previously scheduled conclusion Saturday. Brig. Gen. Philip Gallagher, chief umpire, said strikes by fighters and bombers attacking armored convoys last Sunday caused "unbelievable overall damage."

Financial and Commercial

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—A brisk buying rally in the stock market today put prices up by fractions to more than a point.

Enthusiasm was based on Wall Street's favorable interpretation of progress toward settlement of labor-management difficulties in the steel industry and on the long range benefits arising from Washington plans for untangling the snarl of international trade.

Buying attention was focused on the steel group, but oils, motors, rails and chemicals also participated in the rise.

The advance in railroad shares was noted particularly because they have been somewhat backward in recent weeks.

The market started off fast and kept up the pace. Trading at times hit the highest rate in several months.

Gold shares were alone in posting small losses. That was evidence of disappointment over the coolness accorded any proposal to increase the price of gold from its present $35 a fine ounce as a means for giving gold producing countries a windfall dollar bonus.

Jones Firm Accepts

Pittsburgh, Sept. 13 (AP)—Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, the nation's No. 4 steel producer, today accepted the presidential board's peace plan "as a basis for collective bargaining." "We are prepared," said a J. and L. statement, "to undertake at once a joint study of pensions with our steelworkers' unions in anticipation of bargaining on this subject beginning March 1 next. With respect to social insurance benefits, we will negotiate with the union for the purpose of reaching a mutually acceptable agreement."

Dollar-Short . . .

sible only through an adjustment of the exchange rate."

The deficit countries, it was declared, "cannot afford to forego any suitable instrument, including any necessary exchange adjustment, that could expand their dollar exports."

In a similar report to its governors, the World Bank emphasized its own inability to "provide the answer to all or even a major part of the world's financial ills" through its lending powers.

"It is beyond both the purpose and the power of the bank, for example, to cure the 'dollar shortage,'" said the report presented by the bank's American president, Eugene R. Black.

Bank Has Resources

The bank now has the resources to help finance "all the sound, productive projects in its member countries that will be ready for financing in the next few years, that can appropriately be financed through repayable foreign loans, and that cannot attract private capital," Black declared.

Black emphasized the part which the bank may play in building up the world's underdeveloped areas, as urged in the famed "point four" of President Truman's inaugural address.

But he said that foreign development financing "should preferably be derived mainly from private sources." And he criticized proposals for "fuzzy," long-term, low-interest loans which, he declared, actually are international subsidies or "a disguised grant to the borrower."

The bank thus far has made loans totaling $716,000,000 to ten nations, he reported. Twenty more reconstruction and development projects are under investigation.

Among the latter is a "loan of moderate size" to Yugoslavia. The report indicated that this would be a sum considerably smaller than the $500,000,000 which Yugoslavia asked in 1947 or the $250,000,000 more recently mentioned.

The United States, through the Export-Import Bank, last week granted a $20,000,000 loan to Yugoslavia to help bolster Marshall Tito's government in its own cold war with Moscow.

The report indicated that perhaps a majority of the pending loans are for development projects—many of them in Latin America—rather than for reconstruction in the war-ravaged areas. But black noted that underdeveloped countries cannot absorb new capital quickly, adding:

"The principal limitation upon bank financing in the development field has not been lack of money but lack of well-prepared and well-planned projects ready for immediate execution."

The fund's report claimed greater attention than the bank's, as the four-day session was called to order, because of its topical content.

It urged the dollar-short nations to cut prices and push the production of goods salable in the United States, and to try to attract foreign investment.

But it pointed out that United States wholesale prices on manufactured goods average 175 per cent of their 1937 level, while prices in the major western European countries stand at 210 per cent. Normal efforts to lower the cost of export goods, to make them attractive to American buyers, would not close such a gap, the fund suggested.

"A fixed exchange rate is desirable as long as a country is able to adjust its economy to changes in its real international economic position," it went on.

"But when the adjustments needed in face of a radical change in a country's international economic position cannot be made through home prices and costs, it may be necessary to change the exchange rate."

The report was construed as an invitation to the debtor countries to develop, through the fund, a workable revaluation. Secretary Snyder, in commenting on pound devaluation last week, said it is a problem for the fund to handle.

The report dealt briefly with proposals for increasing the price of gold—a subject due to be raised in a pending resolution from South Africa. While an increase would aid the gold-producing nations, it said, other effects might be less beneficial.

The bank and fund meeting will last through Friday.

Dollar Accord Has Averted Election

London, Sept. 13 (AP)—Informed British political sources said today they believe the three-nation Washington dollar accord has averted an autumn general election in Britain.

These informants said failure of the conference in the American capital would have compelled the Labor government to seek a new electoral mandate for pressing its own long-term cure for Britain's economic ills.

Government officials were silent on the election issue. They said only that the 10-point program laid down yesterday by U. S., British and Canadian economic experts has staved off immediate widespread unemployment and short-time work in England.

THE RUMINATOR

A Column of Contrary Opinion
By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

Now that the three-nation financial talks have commenced in Washington—with more to follow when the directors of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund meet next week—it may be interesting to recall a lesson from the past.

Time and again down through the ages when a nation has faced financial difficulties the popular solution has been "more money."

Great Britain's dilemma is reminiscent of these former periods. However, "it is different this time," in that instead of issuing enormous sums of paper money—which rapidly sinks in value—she is appealing to other nations, chiefly the United States, to bale her out of her difficulties—to stave off the realities of what would amount to bankruptcy if we were discussing a private corporation.

Some stop-gap solution must be found. Britain cannot be permitted to "go under," but that makes the problem all the more difficult. Each time a stumbling and weak economy is bolstered up—whether it be a great nation or a business corporation—the props have less strength. It takes more props—more money—each time the bolstering process is attempted.

While the gentlemen in Washington are seeking ways and means of aiding Great Britain "in the modern manner," let us note how France, for example, tried to get out from under her crushing difficulties 160 years ago.

"Early in the year 1789," writes Andrew D. White, in his classic monograph, FIAT MONEY INFLATION IN FRANCE, "the French nation found itself in deep financial embarrassment, there was a heavy debt and a serious deficit." Familiar words, but let us read on.

"Statemanlike measures, careful watching and wise management would doubtless have ere long led to a return of confidence . . . but these involved patience and self-denial, and thus far in human history these are the rarest products of political wisdom." We should, in fairness to Great Britain, break in here and remember that Sir Stafford Cripps has tried to solve his country's troubles by preaching "austerity." However, a socialistic form of government, hinged upon paternalism, does not take readily to preachments of self-denial, hard work, low wages, and patience. Yet, these are the qualities needed today, as they were in France at the time Mr. White is describing.

In France the hard way had no appeal. "There was a general search for some short road to prosperity; ere long the idea was set afloat that the great want of the country was far more of the circulating medium (today it is want of more dollars) . . . this was speedily followed by calls for an issue of paper money."

The great Mirabeau tried by the strength of his oratory to stop the fiendish scheme of Marat, to issue paper money backed by the lands of the church. He lifted his voice in the National Assembly against the wicked idea of issuing 400 million assignats unsupported by specie—but to no avail.

The immediate result of the paper-money stimulant was, of course, successful. For a brief time, business picked up. People were happy. France rejoiced at the brilliant plan.

Boot-strap economics never work for long, however. Within a short five months the money was gone and "the government was in distress again." You know the sequel. After lengthy debates wise counsel went for naught. On the 29th of September, 1790, the Assembly voted by a large majority to issue more assignats—this time doubling the amount to 800 million.

The false illusion that inflation is prosperity swept through France.

There was no stopping the orgy. Issue followed issue as the paper money quickly lost its value.

Soon, drastic laws were instituted to save the day. Landed estates were confiscated. Price fixing—Law of the Maximum—were passed. Always do nations try price-fixing when everything else seems to fail.

"New issues only increase the evil," writes White . . . "but no relief resulted save a monetary stimulus, which aggravated the disease.

"At last came the collapse and then a return by a fearful shock, to a state of things which presented like certainty of remuneration to capital and labor. Then, and not till then, came a new era of prosperity."

When all governments, including our own, carry a great debt load, as is the case today, it behooves thoughtful citizens to recall occasionally these disasterous eras of inflation with which our history books are filled.

From a contrary viewpoint, it is difficult for this writer to see how any trend but inflation, over the years, can take form. It would seem that the general belief in a long deflation may prove erroneous because of the monetary policies which are being adopted throughout the world.

Faye Emerson Is To Divorce Elliott

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—Actress Faye Emerson plans to bring divorce proceedings against Elliott Roosevelt as soon as she finishes work on a motion picture now in production.

The 31-year-old actress, confirming yesterday that she and the late President's son have separated, said "Elliott and I parted on friendly terms."

As she stood by in a studio, a representative handed out an unsigned statement which said:

"Faye Emerson confirmed today the report that she would seek a divorce from Elliott Roosevelt.

"Miss Emerson said 'I'm sorry to say that Mr. Roosevelt and I have been separated for some time and I plan a divorce when I have finished my current motion picture. Elliott and I parted on friendly terms.'"

Roosevelt, who was reached by a newsman in Providence, R. I., said the breakup of the marriage "is a personal matter—I have no comment." He was in Providence for a speaking engagement.

His wife declined comment beyond the formal statement.

Roosevelt, married twice before, and Miss Emerson, married once before, were wed in December, 1944.

Roosevelt, 38, and the actress, 31, separated in August.

Roosevelt has remained at their Hyde Park, N. Y., home in recent weeks and the wife has stayed at their New York city apartment. Neither Roosevelt nor his wife is reported to have a romantic interest elsewhere, and friends of the couple lay the rift to "a conflict in interests."

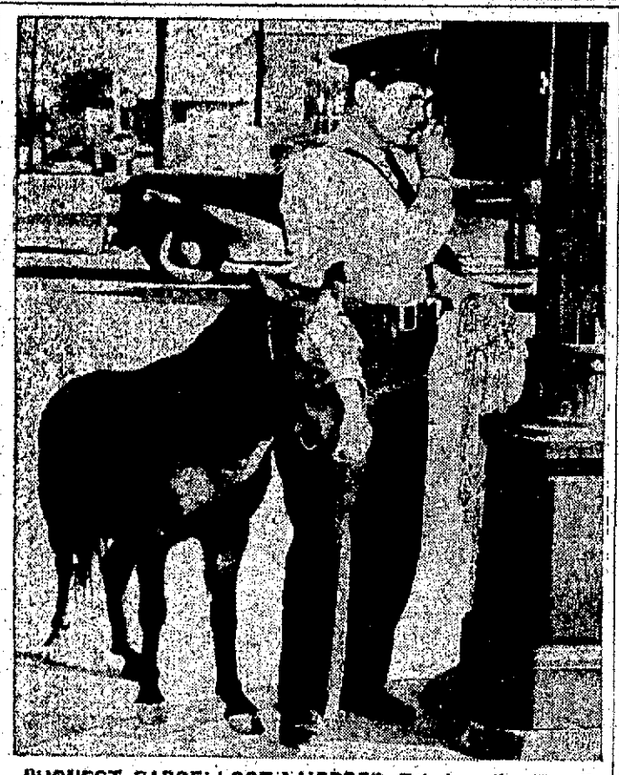

Treated in December

Mrs. Roosevelt was treated for a razor slash on a wrist last Dec. 26 at Hyde Park. Dutchess county District Attorney W. Vincent Grady, who questioned the husband and other persons, later declared the matter closed.

Three days after the incident, Roosevelt told newsmen that his wife cut herself accidentally, and that there had not been a family disagreement. Roosevelt said he wanted to set at rest "insinuations that she tried to commit suicide."

The actress' first marriage was to William Crawford of California. Roosevelt previously was married to Elizabeth Donner of Philadelphia and Ruth Goggins of Forth Worth, Tex.

Miss Emerson appeared in 25 motion pictures before her marriage, and turned to the Broadway stage in 1948. She now is making the motion picture "Guilty Bystander" in New York. She also has appeared in television shows.

BASEBALL AND POLITICS

What happens to former ball players after they retire? Some go into business, some into the trades, some into professional work. Only a few follow the example of Albert B. Hermann and go into politics.

Hermann would admit frankly that in baseball he was no topnotcher. His highest point was as a utility infielder with the Boston Braves. Lately he has been administrative assistant to Senator H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey, and now he has become executive director of the Republican National Committee, at a salary of $20,000 a year.

Precedents for his career are few and far between. John K. Tener, once a noted National League pitcher, went to Congress, and in 1910 was elected governor of Pennsylvania. Joe Shaute, a pitcher once with Cleveland, became a Pennsylvania sheriff. Far more celebrated than either, Walter Johnson, whom many think the greatest pitcher who ever lived, got as far as a congressional nomination from his Maryland district, but was defeated in the election.

Now that Hermann has shown that politics can pay, he might start a new outlet for former ball players.

BUSY RED CROSS

The end of the war was not the end of Red Cross services for the armed forces of the United States. More than 2,000 workers are now caring for military personnel in every corner of the world.

Red Cross field workers help keep contact between service men and their families, delivering emergency messages and supplying emergency services both to the men and to their dependents at home. Recreation, so important to men at loose ends in foreign countries, is supplied by these workers. Their work in military hospitals is an important aid to the medical officers, who realize the significance of morale as a factor in the recovery of patients.

The urgency of demand which characterized the wartime services of the Red Cross has lessened during the years since hostilities ceased, but their work is still needed.

POWER FROM THE SUN

If the next big government project should be the development of power from the sun, there would be little surprise in that for the more severe and cynical critics of the present government. As a matter of serious fact, it could happen. Julius A. Krug, secretary of the interior, says that research in the field has almost progressed to the point where his department will be bold enough to ask for a special appropriation to pursue the subject.

Is it so fantastic? In private research, the sun has been made to warm water, heat buildings, and do other chores. It is not at all impossible that a way may be found to trap on a large scale its vast and apparently inexhaustible energy.

FACTS AND FIGURES

The crash which killed the noted flier William Odom and a young mother and her baby, during the national air races in Cleveland, made the headlines, the newsreels and the radio bulletins. It was a shocking and spectacular tragedy.

Of 550 Labor Day week-end deaths, these were only three. Yet the 550 is only a figure in the long pages of accident statistics. We've had so much of accident statistics that they seem distant and unreal, until suddenly someone you know becomes a figure in the tally. Then it's different; but then it's too late.

FOOD AND NUTRITION

That no country in the world has ever had so high an eating standard as has our own at present is a generally admitted fact. An abundance of good food products, rich in calories and high in vitamin content, is available for our bountifully spread tables.

Yet, with all this, there exists a high percentage of malnutrition among rich and poor alike, according to an authority on nutrition, Dr. Ouida Davis Abbott of the University of Florida. He told the National Dietary Foods Association that, owing to our improper eating habits, the last years of many persons' lives are spent eating the same soft diet with which we started as infants.

Ignorance, indifference, bad distribution, soil variations, and emotional factors all are blamed for poor nutrition. None of these presents an insoluble problem.

Everyone should be familiar with the principles of a balanced diet, and should govern his eating habits accordingly. There is no excuse for malnutrition in this richly endowed country.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

NARROW MARGINS

A problem that a columnist faces every day is whether he should devote himself to such pleasant subjects as the turning of the leaves in autumn or to giving the impression of playing a broken record by constantly calling attention to the foibles of other men. Not that the columnists have no foibles of their own, which if anyone took the trouble to write about, as Pegler does of Pearson and Eleanor Roosevelt, show up no better than they should be.

It so happens that I like the personality of Maurice J. Tobin, secretary of labor, who is a delightful companion and a great one for arguing. But he has no philosophy and therefore meanders. His department has issued a piece entitled "Security Is the Common Goal of Farmers, Workers." The comma is important, because for some reason, farmers are differentiated from workers, which, in the United States, is not true. In Russia, they make a distinction between peasants and workers, in accordance with Marxian class-consciousness.

"But in the United States, the farmer is usually a capitalist because he owns a home, an automobile, maybe a tractor and some other machinery, a barn and a silo, cattle and whatnot. He has invested in the tools of production. Also he is a small businessman, because he is generally engaged in the financing, production and distribution of commodities. Also, he is a laborer because he works himself on the job, long hours in the spring and summer, shorter hours in winter. In a word, an American farmer is not a peasant and whoever wrote this article for Maurice Tobin needs to look to his ideologies. His heart is still in eastern Europe.

Further, this point is made:

"The farmer's worry is about such things as the change in prices which he will receive for his product, and uncertainty as to future markets or weather conditions: His job is always there.

"The wage earner, on the other hand, is concerned primarily with job security."

Now there Maurice is doing very badly. For if all that the laborer needs to worry about is job security, then he ought to enter into a state of slavery. In slavery, there is always job security. The slave is never out of a job—particularly if he is enslaved to the state. The millions of men and women in the slave camps in the Urals and in Siberia have job security.

What the laborer, as every American, should have as his first aim is to become a boss, that is, to improve himself and his family socially and economically. If Maurice Tobin will look back, that was the aim of his father and the goal has been achieved, for Maurice has moved far. And he has no job security as a cabinet officer, but he does have an opportunity for great usefulness, for outstanding public service, for bringing distinction to his name. Those are things to work for, and if Maurice could do so well, perhaps you and I might.

"Job security" is a cheap way of living, for it is like those serfs who were bound to the soil, or indentured servants, people who could not move up or who moved with great difficulty. We never built this nation by such a philosophy.

Then this piece (anonymous) says:

". . . It is his right to organize, and the exercise of this right, which has meant to the wage earner the opportunity for meeting as equals those elements in our society which must give him the things he needs."

Which "elements" in our society are in a position or have to give anyone "the things he needs?" How are needs defined? Who is responsible to give me my needs? Or yours? Or anyone's? And is this a charity or compensation? And how do you measure compensation for needs? There was a time when some socialists spoke of satisfying "needs," but Stalin kicked that idea out and put in a wage scale based upon production, with a speed-up called Stakhanovism.

See, Maurice, you have a philosophy and whoever put this stuff over on you, played you dirt, because he got you involved in mixed and twisted ideas—none of which are American.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

RETIRING COMPLETELY FROM WORK

You may remember my story about the elderly employe of a Pittsburgh retail coal yard who after working for one employer for 50 years was called into the office. His employer said, "Jack, you have been with us for 50 years. Here is a purse of five hundred dollars, a gold watch, and beginning with tomorrow morning your pay will go on as before, but you will not have to report for work anymore."

The employe replied, "I am taking the purse and the watch, but I'll be here for work tomorrow morning just the same."

To be able to retire is the goal of many men. But stopping all physical and mental work is a mistake. Thus this coalyard employe knew that while working was not the pleasantest thing in the world, not being able to meet his fellow employes and others every day would make life dull indeed. Other considerations are the irregularity of the retired way of living as to food, rest and exercise. There is indigestion, constipation, and usually loss of desire for food. In cases of businessmen whose physical work is light but whose responsibilities are heavy, the blood pressure often is high.

Frequently, the suggestion is to retire, so they may take things easy, and have less responsibility. It is known that rest of mind and body is the first thought in the treatment of high blood pressure, the forerunner of heart and brain strokes.

That retirement in most of these cases is a mistake is stated by Dr. Herman O. Mosenthal, Associate Clinical Professor of Medicine, New York Medical College, in "Medical Clinics of North America," unless there is total mental or physical disability. The occupation or daily work of the patient should be adjusted to his or her fitness.

Instead of resting completely from work, thus becoming an invalid, Dr. Mosenthal advises plenty of rest, not less than eight hours at night, even if a quieting drug is needed to obtain complete rest, with at least one rest during the day, right after lunch if possible.

In the office no annoying callers are allowed, and if rest increases weight, less food should be eaten. Overweight is dangerous in cases of high blood pressure. The thought then is that while rest is the most important point of the treatment in high blood pressure, complete mental and physical idleness is a mistake.

"Hey, I've Got Votes, Too!"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—President Truman doesn't nurse grudges against most of his political enemies, but he has a few pet peeves that apparently he will never forget. One of them is gaunt, gray Bernard Baruch, the friend of presidents, and one of the nation's few elder statesmen.

One year ago Baruch declined Truman's invitation to serve on a special committee to support his re-election, and Truman, in turn, wrote Baruch one of the most caustic letters of the campaign. He reminded him, among other things, how he had appointed his brother Herman as ambassador to Holland.

Sequel came the other day when the President tried to persuade his old friend, Adm. William D. Leahy, to become ambassador to Holland.

"You know how I feel about that old so-and-so, Baruch," said Mr. Truman. "He still has his brother over there in Holland as ambassador and I want you to take his place. You're just the man to do it."

"Admiral Leahy declined. Selden Chapin, who was kicked out by the Soviets as ambassador to Hungary will now take over the embassy in Holland. Ironically, President Truman rubbed salt in Bernie Baruch's wounds by announcing the forced resignation of his brother on Bernie's birthday, and significantly, the resignation was announced by the White House, not by the State Department which usually announces all diplomatic changes."

Tortoise and the Hare

The House of Representatives and the Senate are now in a tortoise-and-the-hare race, and it looks as if the ponderous, slow-moving Senate might win after all.

Though the House gets credit for being the streamlined, efficient branch of Congress, actually the Senate, still sticking to its knitting, is handicapped by the House's absence.

Four important bills, passed by the Senate, are now waiting until the House comes back from its vacation to iron out differences. They are: 1. Appropriations for the Marshall Plan; 2. 75-cent minimum wage; 3. Federal aid to prevent forest fires; 4. The basing-point system—of great interest to every small-business man because the new law may drive a hole in the anti-trust laws big enough for a cartel to walk through.

The Senate has also edged ahead of the House with four important Truman measures, and is now waiting for the House to get back from holidaying and pass them. They are: (1) Federal aid to education; (2) health services for school children; (3) expansion of hospital construction; (4) national science foundation to encourage science.

Of course a lot of bills passed by the House still await Senate action but if the House doesn't get back to work fairly soon, the senatorial tortoise may beat the hare yet.

Air Junkets

Here are some of the congressional junkets planned or already under way and which caused Secretary of Defense Johnson's aides to get worried about the use of air force planes:

1. The "Sacred Cow" has left for the Interparliamentary Union in Norway with Congressmen Cooley (N. C.), Poage (Tex.), Gore (Tenn.), Hope (Kans.), Boggs (La.), and Tallo (Ia.).

2. Three congressmen from the House Agriculture Committee will also fly, courtesy of the air force, to study hoof-and-mouth disease in Mexico. They are: Lind (Pa.), Davies (N. Y.), and Bramblett (Calif.). Congressmen Eugene Worley of Texas and John McMillan of South Carolina went on ahead of them—by boat.

3. Cook's tour—Several members of House Expenditures Committee have left by air force plane for Alaska, the Far East and the Pacific islands to investigate military installations, though this is supposed to be the job of the Armed Services Committee. The group includes: Burnside (W. Va.), Richlman (N. Y.), Lovre (S. Dak.) and Deane (N. C.).

Dog Days at Capitol

There is no longer any doubt that these have been the "dog days" on Capitol Hill. For two senators literally barked at each other recently in the middle of Senate debate.

August, silver-crested Senator Tom Connally, Texas Democrat, held the floor. But he couldn't complete a sentence without Senator Ken Wherry, Nebraska Republican, butting in.

After one booming interruption, Wherry ended up by whamming his fist on the desk.

"I did not yield for that slam on the desk," grunted Connally.

"That is one way to drive a point home," roared back Wherry.

"I feel very much like an old lawyer in my section of the country once did," observed the senator from Texas, acidly. "He had as his legal antagonist a very loud and enthusiastic lawyer, who shouted and foamed at the mouth in addressing the jury. When it came the turn of the other lawyer to answer him, he stood up and said: 'If Your Honor please, Bow-wow-wow-wow.'

"Now that I have answered my opponent, I shall discuss this case," continued Connally.

"Bow - wow - wow - wow - wow - wow," blurted Wherry.

"Mr. President, I do not like to discuss this question in any but the most serious fashion," bristled the senator from Texas.

"The senator's answers are just as clear as 'Bow-wow-wow-wow'—just as clear!" snorted the senator from Nebraska.

"Well, I use that kind of language and that kind of explanation — Bow - wow - wow - wow!" snapped the Texan.

Then Connally went on with his speech. Wherry listened for a few minutes, then broke in again.

"That sounds like 'Bow-wow-wow-wow-wow,'" he finally suggested.

Merry-Go-Round

It was lucky for the nation that Wright Morrow, the reformed Dixiecrat and Democratic national committeeman from Texas, turned down the job as ambassador to Belgium because he didn't think it was important enough. For the Belgian Congo is our main source of uranium and our embassy in Brussels is one of the most important in the world. Robert Murphy, a trained diplomat and the man who prepared the North African underground before U. S. troops landed, has now been made ambassador. . . . Maury Maverick, whose grandfather was a famous southern general, has given the President a collection of Confederate history books for the Truman Library at Independence, Mo. Maverick wants to help Truman bequeath to Independence the greatest history collection on the Civil War.

Czech Hens Lay More Eggs

Prague (AP) — The government statistical service reports that Czechoslovakia's hens are doing better for the nation—increasing their egg laying average. This rose to 13.3 eggs per hen in June and the over-all egg production rose 25.4 per cent for the first half of 1949. A further contributing factor was an increase of nearly three million in the number of hens.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Sept. 12—A few days ago, for the first time in my life, I saw the word trillion used seriously in a discussion of our national debt. A trillion is one thousand billion and a billion is one thousand million. Our national debt is now one-quarter of a trillion dollars. I never knew there was that much money. I don't. There isn't. Actually, the debt is $252 billion, but we are so benumbed that the two billion above the even 250 billion, which make a quarter of a trillion, are just lagniappe. We have come so far from reality that we regard a couple of loose billion as mere breakage.

I had occasion recently to refer to some figures that Senator Harry F. Byrd had used in his desperate effort to stop the squandering of money and save us from the sort of inflation that has reduced the other moneys of the world to earnest and pathetic absurdity in relation to ours, which is sillier than we think. Senator Byrd had said that the interest on our national debt—just the national debt, on top of the state, county and city debts—was $5 and one half billion a year. That is just the interest. It is more than five times the total budgets for all organized nations of the world about 1900, including the cost of gold ropes and horse-feathers, patent leather boots and helmets and jeweled decorations for the emperors, princes and marshals, and "crushing burden of armaments" and the interest on all their national debts combined.

Just the interest on our national debt is about five times our own total running expense of the national government up to the time of the Wilson administration when, in a mad delusion, the government of the United States conceived itself to have been appointed by God and instructed by the poor, dumb, uncomprehending people to make the world safe for a scourge and a curse called democracy. That running expense included the pension roll of the G.A.R., a mighty band of treasury raiders, as we thought at the time, whose last reunion has just been solemnized after an awesome career at the trough. It included the Spanish-American veterans, the most artful and successful of them all, whose tinpot war wasn't equivalent to a brisk skirmish in the First and Second World Wars. There are old cracks of ninety-eight still drawing disability who never even heard a flivver backfire, because we had no flivvers, much less a gun fired in anger, in that war. But we have to admit that their war was the only foreign war we ever had since the Revolution that showed us a profit. So their account is not as badly overdrawn as it otherwise might seem.

Senator Byrd had said, further, that this interest of $5 billion a year was equal to the assessed valuation of all the property in "states like Illinois, New Jersey and Indiana." In a booklet published by the National Industrial Conference Board someone, apparently grown indifferent to the solemnity of such figures, rearranged this so that Senator Byrd was made to say that this interest was equal to the combined value of those states. Actually, the "assessed valuation of property subject to general and selective taxes" in Illinois, New Jersey and Indiana was, respectively, $8,293,000,000; $5,078,000,000, and $3,506,000,000, a total of almost $16 billion, not that it makes much difference. In three years, our national debt would require interest equal to the value of these three great states and if we assume that New Jersey is being foreclosed for the 1949 interest, it is about two-thirds gone already. Next year, Illinois, and in 1951, Indiana. Or, if you would educate your imagination and appreciation in terms of farming and grazing properties, this interest bill would easily devour the Missouri Valley and the cow states in any single year.

The assessed valuation of all the property in the United States subject to general and selective property taxes in 1942 was $143,282,000,000. So the present national debt alone, that quarter of a trillion, is almost 110 billion dollars more than the basis on which we pay property taxes. True, the assessed valuation is no more than about half of the actual value of the property, but even that optimistic little thought leaves us contemplating the fact that we have borrowed from the future about three-fifths of the actual value. It would be difficult to find a lender who would let you have that much on a mortgage on your home or farm, and he would want a much better rate of interest than the government pays us, and an amortization arrangement, too.

President Truman remarked in one of his honest blurts of indomitable ignorance that there were too many Byrds on Capitol Hill. There is no answer to such a remark. It is frightening because Senator Byrd certainly has no ulterior purpose in raising the alarm against inflation, repudiation of debt, ruin and Socialism. And as frightening because, too, the President hasn't the faintest realization of the meaning of these problems, much less of their solution. So he thinks a man who does make an intelligent study of the figures and fears the future ought to be eliminated as an agent of some phantom thing called special interests.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

New York (AP)—Thirty lovely women looked at me over the week-end with provocative eyes.

And they all wanted me to say —"yes, you're the one."

Yep, one after the other they came up, all thirty of them—all with that same look in their eyes. And I had to say, "no, not you" to 20 of these beautiful dames.

It should have been easy to do this. After all, every one was married—and their husbands were looking on. But that only made it harder.

What a spot to be in!

No, this isn't a nightmare. I didn't dream it. I merely acted as a judge in the Mrs. America contest at Asbury Park, the Jersey shore resort.

It is supposed to be every man's ambition to be a judge in a beauty contest. This could be true only because every man hasn't tried it. Once is plenty.

The thirty wives were the finalists in a contest to pick, from all the housfraus in the United States, the one who was both the most beautiful and the best homemaker.

On the face of it this task was worse than looking for a needle in a haystack (who ever lost a needle in a haystack anyway?) It was like searching for a walnut tree that also sprouted roses.

As the thirty lovelies paraded past, first in evening gowns, then in bathing suits, the task of the judges was to weed the contestants down to twelve, next to six and finally to three.

Back and forth they swished. A judge next to me was working furiously at his chart.

"How are you judging them?" I asked. He looked at a girl in evening dress silhouetted against a spotlight.

"I'm voting for the ones that didn't wear slips," he said.

"And you?" I asked another judge.

"Strictly legs," he said. "I've been a leg man for years."

As another judge seemed to be concentrating on bosoms and crossly suggested I find a specialty of my own, I began scoring on teeth, eyes, hairs and nostrils. There didn't seem to be much else in sight.

An official rushed over and said:

"Here, you're not judging beauty. You're a homemaking judge."

My own wife, Frances, gave a fiendish chortle in her favorite ear—mine.

"That dates you, Rover boy," she said. I felt the weight of years.

My job wasn't to pick the pretties. It was to help judge the pretties the pretties had made with their own pretty hands—crocheted doilies, home-sewn baby dresses, and preserved fruits and vegetables. Four jars of pickles, carrots and peaches later our verdict was in.

My choice, Mrs. Cincinnati, a winsome brownette, was the audience favorite. The other entrants also voted her the most congenial girl in the contest. But she didn't win.

The crown went to Mrs. California, who got about $6,000 in prizes—if you include a year's supply of pretzels and diapers and a $500 scholarship to the Empire State School of Optics in Brooklyn.

Later the husband of one of the losing candidates was asked why he had encouraged his wife to try to become Mrs. America.

"If she won," he said sadly, "I figured I could quit work."

So They Say...

It would be erroneous to consider the Chinese civil war as merely a struggle for power between rival factions. The fact is that the emergence of the Communists as the dominant force in China marks another phase of political and social revolution which has been in progress for more than half a century.

There have been several instances in Ulster county of cows becoming infected with rabies particularly in the areas where rabid foxes have been prevalent There has been one known case of rabies among dogs in a dog in the Town of Wawarsing which was suspected of having been infected prior to inoculation.

Dr. Hoppenstedt attributed some of the lack of attendance at the present free vaccination clinics to a feeling of security on the part of dog owners because rabies had not been prevalent in dogs. The only measure which has prevented such a spread of rabies to dogs was the vaccination work of 1948. For continued effectiveness, dogs must be re-vaccinated annually.

Danger of the spread of rabies to man it rabies spreads to dogs is brought out by the fact that during 1948 and to date in 1949, 300 dogbite investigations were made by or through the Ulster County Department of Health by County Health Department personnel or through the cooperation of local dog wardens.

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—Dr William A. Brumfield, New York state first deputy health commissioner, and Dr. William F. The meeting at Rome continues through Friday.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—You are always being told what you—"the average American citizen"—own, owe, make, spend and save. And, somehow, it never seems to fit your own case very well.

For instance, there are Federal Reserve Board figures to show that Americans as a whole own more "liquid assets" than ever before—some $132 billion worth, compared with $45 billion before the war. But at the same time you are told that "the average spending unit," a family, had only $300 put away in liquid assets in 1948, whereas the year before it had $350, and in 1946 had $400

Liquid assets are savings you can turn into cash easily when you need it, such as demand and time deposits in banks, Savings & Loan shares and United States government securities

The growth in total liquid assets and drop in average holdings becomes the more confusing when you are told that last year three million families used up their savings, but the same year as many or more started nest eggs for the first time It all adds up to the suspicion that maybe there isn't any average American

If you are one of the three million to have spent your liquid savings, you may have used them up when the cost of living was rising. But you may have put them into a home or other real estate or into starting a business That scarcely makes you a spendthrift. It does make you below average when it comes to compiling statistics

Before you get too worried about the average holdings of liquid assets being lower now than in 1946, look at some other figures.

There are 530 mutual savings banks in the United States Their total deposits are just under $19 billion, up from $10 1/3 billion just ten years ago. There are more than 19 million depositors now, a gain of 3½ million in 10 years. During the first seven months of this year, while every one was talking about the slump, deposits rose $588 million The number of depositors increased by $339,000 this year

Not 'Liquid Asset'

At midyear Americans had $3¼ billion in postal savings and $56 billion in government savings bonds, more than ever before.

Or look at life insurance, not counted as a "liquid asset." In the first seven months of this year Americans bought policies with face value of $13 billion (although the premiums they paid in did not total that much, of course). This was $172 million more than purchased in the same period last year. Their total holdings at the start of this year were 70 per cent above that they held in 1940.

In the first six months of this year American individuals, banks and insurance companies paid an average of $53 million each month for new issues of corporate common stocks, $38 million for preferred stocks, and $452½ million for corporate bonds and notes The National Industrial Conference Board says you have to go back to 1929 to find any monthly average like it—a monthly total of $538¼ million for corporate securities.

Individuals' time deposits in banks totaled $52 billion at the start of this year, compared with $24 billion ten years ago, the Federal Reserve Board reports. Demand deposits topped $29 billion, against a little more than $7 billion ten years ago.

The Department of Commerce puts total personal income last year at $206 billion That is the total paid out in wages, salaries, net income of unincorporated business, dividends, interest, rents, and benefits from social insurance and veterans' pensions

The monthly peak was reached in December. Since then it has retreated, and the latest figures for July, show personal income at an annual rate of just under $210 billion a drop of $4 8 billion from July, 1948

The department averages the 1948 total out at $1,410 a person, a gain of 7 per cent over the previous year.

Chances are there were few persons who made exactly $1,410 But if you are one of these rare individuals, that makes you the average American. How did you manage on that?

Insurance Firm Refuses to Accept Check From Tenant

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, owner of the big Stuyvesant town residential development, has refused to accept a rent check from a tenant who let a negro family live in his apartment.

The company, which has beaten litigation seeking to force it to rent to negroes, returned the latest rent check to the tenant yesterday on the ground he had violated his lease.

The project's resident manager told the tenant, Union Organizer Jesse Kessler, in a letter:

"We understand that you are permitting others to occupy your apartment in violation of the terms of your lease and therefore, under the circumstances, we cannot accept your rent."

A company spokesman said there would be no comment on the letter.

The negro family had moved to another apartment — still as guests—before the rent check was returned to Kessler.

The negroes—Mr and Mrs. Hardine Hendrix and their five-year-old son—were provided with an apartment by Dr. Lee Lorch after the Kessler family returned from a vacation and needed their apartment again.

Dr. Lorch, who let the negroes in while he is out of town, said he, too, expected to get his rent back from the company.

He declared tenants of the project "will fight Jim Crow no matter what the Metropolitan tries to do"

Paul Ross, head of a tenant group opposing discrimination in the development, told a meeting of the New York Tenants' Council last night:

"The next step is for the Metropolitan to apply to the city rent commission for a certificate to evict the Kesslers.

"We serve notice . . . that we will vigorously oppose any such proceedings, and will support the Kesslers, the Lorchs and all other tenants who may be the object of persecution by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company."

Reade Drive-In Pony Claims Championship

Dixie Reade the five-year-old pony stabled at the 9W Drive-In Theatre and owned by Walter Reade, Jr., is the 1949 champion of the country's drive-in theatre ponies, it was claimed today by Jack Hamilton, theatre manager.

During the past week-end, Dixie won six ribbons and two trophies at the Hudson Valley Horse Show in Cornwall on Saturday and two ribbons and a cash award at the Woodstock Fair and Field Day on Sunday.

Manager Hamilton said the pony this year has already won 11 ribbons, two trophies and many cash prizes. The pony's trainer is Howard Quick, who is preparing him for the West Ghent Horse Show on October 1. Donald Quick, son of the trainer, rides the pony during the various shows in which he is entered.

Rotary Club Pays Tribute To Arthur Frederick Sheldon

At the recent district assembly of Rotary International, 255th district held in Kingston an honor was bestowed on Mrs. Arthur Frederick Sheldon of this city.

The Chicago Club, number 1 in Rotary, joined with the district to pay tribute to the memory of the life and services of her husband, Arthur F. Sheldon.

Following are the tributes:

Good Tidings!

Be it known that in any Realm where Kindness is King—Mrs. Arthur Frederick Sheldon is truly qualified to serve as the Queen.

We of Rotary International have been enriched by the example and endowment, left to us by the Pioneer Rotarian Arthur Frederick Sheldon.

In this tribute we are joined by the membership of "Old Number One" the Chicago Rotary Club, where Rotarian Sheldon sustained a most effective membership.

In the motion of events all of us will arrive at the time when we discover that:

"He profits most who serves the best."

THOMAS F. McDERMOTT,
District Governor.
CHARLES B. BACK,
President, Kingston, N. Y. Rotary Club.
September 9, 1949.

Arthur Frederick Sheldon

About the turn of the century Arthur Frederick Sheldon was engaged in selling books—good books, books of history, of travel. As he conducted his business the thought came to him that he was not merely making money but was helping to bring education and culture to his customers, that he was rendering a real service to them in providing them with good books. The more he thought about it the more he concluded that all salesmanship should be a matter of rendering good service to others. Finally he developed what became known as the Sheldon School of Salesmanship which emphasized that a salesman should not be merely an order taker but one who was rendering a real service to others.

In January, 1908, Sheldon became a member of the Chicago Rotary Club, at that time the only Rotary Club in the world. Therein he found not only fellowship and mutual helpfulness but a trend toward an emphasis upon all business and professional activity being an opportunity for service to others. He and Paul Harris, the founder of the Rotary Club, spent many hours together discussing and further developing this early idealism of the Rotary Club. In this first club and in some of the clubs subsequently organized, there were graduates of the Sheldon School of Salesmanship who, together with their teacher, recognized the similarity of the Sheldon idealism and the Rotary idealism.

At the first convention of Rotary Clubs in 1910, Sheldon made an address which was recognized by the delegates from the various clubs as an important contribution to the ideal which they were helping to develop in their respective cities. During the first year of the Association of Rotary Clubs Sheldon served as chairman of its business methods committee (subsequently known as the vocational service committee) and at the second convention held in 1911 he contributed an address which still further gave emphasis to the importance of the ideal of service in all business and professional activities. In that address he again used as he had in his address at the first convention the words—"He Profits Most Who Serves Best" which, together with the words "Service Above Self," became by general acceptance the motto of the Rotary organization.

Sheldon's idealism was a practical one for while he taught that the motivating force in business should be the desire to be of service to others, there is also a law of compensation which inevitably returns profits in money, in satisfaction and in happiness to those who render the service, and the greater the service the greater the returns.

For a number of years, until he removed from Chicago, Sheldon continued as an influential member of the Chicago Rotary Club and in the movement generally. He organized the London and Manchester Clubs, the first Rotary Clubs in England.

At the 1913 Convention he again presented to the delegates his and Rotary's conviction that the ideal of service to others is a most important motivating force in all business and professional work. At the 1921 Convention held in Edinburgh, Scotland, he again addressed the Convention and presented his matured exposition of the ideal of service which made a profound impression on the Convention and subsequently was widely distributed throughout Rotary.

In the book "My Road to Rotary" by Paul Harris, its founder, he has paid a well deserved tribute to Arthur Frederick Sheldon as one who in the early days of Rotary contributed so effectively to the recognition and understanding by Rotarians of their idealism and the Rotary Club of Chicago honors the memory of this early Rotarian by carrying his picture in its Roster as the originator of the motto — "He Profits Most Who Serves Best".

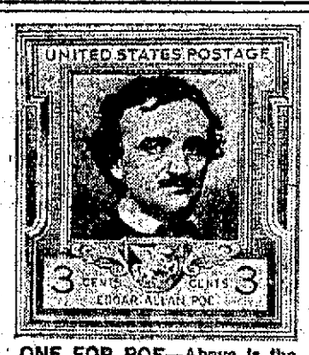

"Rotary is a wheel for turning the best side of man to the light."

"The effort in this scripture is to enlarge the light of memory and to assure the Sheldon family of our enduring esteem."

SHOKAN NEWS

Shokan, Sept. 12—Daniel Conway, Margaretville young man, was numbered among recent callers in the hub of the reservoir country. Dan, who is a nephew of Joseph Conway of Phoenicia, has completed a three-year hitch in the army including Philippine service. He plans to leave soon to take up the study of television at the Coyne Electrical School in Chicago.

The Olive Democratic caucus will take place Saturday evening, September 17, in Odd Fellows Hall. The District No. 1 primaries in Winchell's Hall last Tuesday passed off very quietly with most of the voting taking place in the evening. There were only 25 Republican ballots used and this total was considerably larger than that polled among the Democrats.

The annual association meeting of the Olive and several other Old School Baptist churches will be held this year on September 14 and 15, at Halcottsville. As customary at these gatherings for the past 125 years, there will be preaching by elders of the sect from several states. Time was when the congregations at Association meetings would sometimes overflow the meeting house, in which case one of the elders held forth from the front stoop, or from an old fashioned horse-block in the meetinghouse yard.

Mrs. Kendall Every and sons, Junior and Robert, left Shokan Friday for their winter home in Richmond Hill, L. I., after having been at the Every bungalow for the past several weeks.

Dr. Shem Everett of Pennsylvania made his annual visit to this section during the holiday and called on several old friends. Doctor Shem was born and raised in the old village of Shokan, being one of three sons of George M. Everett, general storekeeper who sold his business to the Winchells in the early 1880's. A man of integrity and fine personality, he has one of the largest Sunday school classes in his part of the Keystone State. He was a guest at the Chloey Bell home on the Onteora Trail.

Truckloads of ash logs continue to pass through the village though less frequently than was the case last winter. The crack of horseside against Catskill Mountain ash is heard on hundreds of baseball diamonds each season; the Ramberg plant at Hancock, Delaware county, alone is reported to have turned out stock for about half a million bats in one year.

The total number of children born to residents of the town of Olive during the period 1940-47 was 121, according to data compiled by Onteora School District officials in connection with a survey on birth rate trends in the six towns which make up the district. The tables also reveal that the county birth rate increased from 13.5 to 20.9 per thousand in 1935-47. These and other statistics have been gathered from various sources for use as a guide in determining the approximate facilities which must be provided in the proposed new school plant at Boiceville.

Louis Shaw, a native of Shokan, was numbered among the Labor Day callers here. Lou, who was 81 on September 5, and looks to be in his sixties, now resides with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Boice, at Lake Katrine. He also assists his son, Stanley Shaw, a War 1 veteran, in the latter's Smith avenue grocery business.

Having a birthday, on Wednesday, September 14, is Anne Koch of the Church Hill neighborhood of Shokan who came here from New York last year to reside with her sister, Olga Pastre. Born in Brooklyn Heights, Mrs. Koch was formerly a supervising accountant in the city and is now assisting at the Pastre store on the Trail. . . . Still another natal anniversary this coming Wednesday is that of Diana DeLong, a winsome miss of two summers who was born in Kingston. She is the daughter of Maynard and Helen DeLong who make their home in the George Hauser bungalow here.

Mrs. Joseph Sullivan, who occupied a bungalow in the village center during the summer months, returned to her home in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn Saturday. Mrs. Sullivan plans to come here occasionally during the fall and winter.

Carl Farrell of Zena spent the week-end with his relatives, the Maynard DeLong family.

Callers here Saturday included Raymond and Jay Buley, Binghamton residents whose boyhood home was the present Eugene McGowan place on the Trail. They had not been here since moving away, some 20 years ago, and both were properly astonished at the changes made in the twin villages since the late 1920's. Raymond, who is now employed by the Federal government at an air forces supply plant, reports that his mother, Mrs. William Buley, died some time ago and his father lives in Dutchess county. The young men and their wives while in town called on the Alva and Harold Buley families in the Tonche Mountain neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. Holger Fagenstrom and Eugene Keller motored up from the city and spent the week-end at the Ridge road camp of Mrs. Fagerstrom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Algot Olson.

Edwin "Doc" Lee, local man who figured in the highway accident at West Hurley early Friday morning, was seriously injured according to unofficial reports from his bedside at a Kingston hospital, which indicate that a fractured leg and thigh will keep him laid up for a long time to come. Lee, who was employed on the new state road for several months, had sold his mountain road place and was preparing to return to his old home town of Dickeson, S. Dak., to operate the family farm there.

Having a birthday, on Friday, September 16, is William H. Jackson, oldest son of Frank and Bessie (Hamilton) Jackson. "Billy," who was born at Charleston, S. C., came to Shokan from Brooklyn some five years ago, and after graduation from the Kingston High School, entered the employ of the telephone company where he is now a splicer's apprentice. He has been working in the Hudson area all summer but expects next week to report at Catskill on a cable "trouble-shooting" assignment. Young Jackson has served in the National Guard and is well-known as a fast player on baseball and basketball teams.

Our "smokeater" readers will appreciate this one from up the line: A young woman who wanted to summon police in the matter of a family ruction, dialed wrong number and a fireman who answered the call mistook the word "fight" for "fire" and promptly put in an alarm. This caused 41 Bainbridge vols to pile out of bed at two in the morning and speed two trucks to nearby Bennetsville, accompanied, of course, by the usual crowd of thrill-seekers. Well, it was a good practice trip, anyway.

Lorna Mallow, Phoenicia woman who is teaching the local school in the continued absence of Hazel Bell, who remains hospitalized at Galesburg, Ill., has only two pupils thus far, according to report, as a result of family changes here since last term. Ada Lukacs, Shokan, the teacher at Brown's, is looking after 10 pupils while Ruth West of Allaben again has an enrollment of more than 30 at Ashokan. One citizen has expressed the logical opinion that it might be a good idea to send the not inconsiderable number of Ashokan school pupils who reside in Shokan, up to the District No. 3 school with a view to equalizing the duties of Teachers Malloy and West.

News of Our Own Service Folks

Is Promoted

Private Ralph B. Williams, 20, son of Mrs. Ida Relyea, Borden Home Farm, Wallkill, has recently been promoted to the grade of private first class for his outstanding work in his company.

He joined the Army March 24, 1948, and took his initial training at Fort Monmouth, N. J. Completing this training, he received orders to report to the Port of Embarkation at Fort Lawton, Seattle, Wash. It was from there, November 30, 1948, that he sailed for the Far East.

He was first assigned to the famed First Cavalry Division patrolling the thickly populated Tokyo-Yokohama area. Later, he was reassigned to the equally famous Seventh Infantry Division occupying the islands of Hokkaido and northern Honshu. He is a radio operator for Headquarters Company, First Battalion, 32 Infantry Regiment.

"Pigeonholed" Dead

In the communal burial vaults of Guatemala, the remains of the dead are kept in rented "pigeonholes" in concrete walls, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Do You Remember

by SOPHIE MILLER

Met Miss Noyes walking down Spring street and she told me she was interested in the column which mentioned Catherine Vanderlyn's will as her father the Rev. S. D. Noyes was bequeathed $200. The will was dated May 13, 1887. I have recopied this will from the scrap book loaned to me by Raphael Cohen of Albany avenue. This will lists the Vanderlyns and their relationship. Catherine was niece of the famous John Vanderlyn, the artist. Vanderlyn is listed in the World Almanac among noted American painters of the past. Also J. McEntee of Kingston.

Received a note from Mrs. W. N. Fessenden of 86-80-102nd street, Richmond Hill, 18, N. Y., whom I see listed in my 1923 city directory as Maude E., 256 Washington avenue, Kingston, N. Y. She said in part that she has received the "Freeman" for 52 years, dating from Sept. 1, 1897 and that her forbears no doubt received it another 25. She has written to me before and this time asks for back copies in which "Ariadne" The Vanderlyn painting is mentioned.

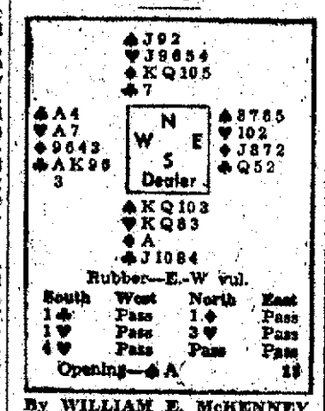

Among items loaned by Robert Matthews from the collection of Mayor Crane I have a Kingston Express printed in Rondout, September 14, 1901. Perhaps the heading you will recall reading: "M'Kinley—His ris from schoolteacher to President. Sketch of the career of the third Chief Executive of the United States to fall victim to the assassin's bullet." According to encyclopedia William McKinley was shot by anarchist, L. Czolgosz, in Buffalo, N. Y., September 6, 1901 and died September 14. He was from Scotch-Irish ancestry. His father was an iron manufacturer. William was the third son, eldest being David, second James and youngest Abner. It says in part: "Major McKinley's home life was very happy despite the fact that his wife was an invalid. She assisted him in politics and in spite of her illness traveled thousands of miles with him. Her home life was short, for out of the 30 years of married life more than 24 were passed by her husband in public service. It is said she crocheted more than 5,000 pairs of slippers for hospital ward patients. Her actual invalidism dates from the birth of a second child in 1871 who died in infancy and was followed by the first child, a daughter of three, a short time afterward. Mrs. Saxton, Mrs. McKinley's mother, also died about this time. These sorrows were more than she could bear, and she never recovered. The Express covers his career as lawyer, governor and President. The article also covers the interesting career of Theodore Roosevelt the then new President of the United States.

Mayor James E. Phinney at that time mayor of Kingston called a special meeting of the Common Council to take appropriate action on Monday evening, September 16, 1901. President McKinley's body was to lie in state Monday with the funeral to be held in Canton, Ohio, on Thursday.

Both the recorders and city courts on motion of Charles Irwin seconded by John N. Clare, adjourned and business was suspended out of respect to the late President.

It is surprising how much we have in common with the fellow sitting next to us at the card table, if we just take the trouble to find it out. I was chatting the other night with Eddie Dunn, who is emcee on the Du Mont television show "Spin the Picture" on Saturday nights.

We found we both had had some funny experiences at school, but I do not think you could equal this one. Eddie was taking Spanish and his teacher spoke nothing but Spanish. At the beginning of a new term his father sent a check to the school for the tuition, and it was returned with the statement that Eddie never had attended a class. You see, Eddie could not understand his name called out in Spanish, and had never answered the roll call.

He got a great kick out of today's hand because it took a gamble to defeat the contract.

West was rather surprised to hear North and South do all the bidding. He won the first trick with the ace of spades and continued with a spade which declarer won with the ten-spot. South then led the king of hearts and West jumped up with the ace.

The natural thing to do here was for West to lead the king of clubs, but that was not what West did when this hand was played. He decided to take a gamble that his partner held the queen of clubs; so he led a small club, which East did win with the queen. A spade was returned, West trumped and set the contract one trick.

Confusion Will Decrease

Detroit, Sept. 13 (AP)—From now on there's going to be less confusion over spelling the Fantaro family name. The five sons and two daughters of an Italian-born immigrant discovered their father had given each one of them a differently spelled last name in registering their births. Juan's was Fantaro, Donald's Fantore, Angelo's Fornaro, Anthony's Fantilator, Joseph's Fantora, Elizabeth's Fernetti, and Nellie's Fornetto. All agreed on Juan's last name and probate Judge William F. Cotter made it official.

Training Is Subject

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 13 (AP)—Adequate training of police was the subject of much of today's business at the 56th annual conference of the International Association of Chiefs of Police. Training and planning was the subject of speeches by William A. Turk, assistant chief inspector of the New York City Police Department, and other police chiefs.

Leaders Will Meet

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—A meeting of union leaders and representatives of the strikebound Bell Aircraft Corp. this afternoon has been announced by spokesmen for both parties. Federal and state mediators, who are seeking to bring about a resumption of collective bargaining in the 14-week-old strike, requested the meeting last night.

Representatives to Meet

St. Louis, Sept. 13 (AP)—Union and management representatives agreed to meet again today in hopes of settling the four-day-old Missouri Pacific railroad strike. First efforts to end the strike ended in failure yesterday.

Smallest Plug-in Amplifier Unit

The world's smallest plug-in amplifier unit, a new development in the miniature electronics field, was announced today by Microtone of Kingston, 7 Main street, distributor for the Microtone Company, St. Paul, Minn., manufacturers of hearing aids.

The smallest of all plug-in amplifier units is called the Microtone "Sound-Screen." It is a waferlike oblong of solid plastic, claimed to be impervious to moisture, shock and dust, in which are sealed all the vital parts of the amplifier circuit of the new Microtone "Classic" hearing aid, available in Kingston for the first time.

Eliminating wires, soldered connections and a maze of parts formerly requiring a trained electronic technician to service, the "Sound Screen" provides hearing aid users with a fool-proof miniature amplifying system as easy to service as it is to replace a flashlight bulb.

Based on the trend in electronic equipment promoted by the armed forces' demand for easy to service plug-in components, this unit uses for the first time the principle applied to hearing aid design, according to Mrs. H. F. Wescott, manager of Microtone of Kingston. Six replaceable parts make up the new hearing aid, which also features the world's first plug-in hearing aid microphone. The size of the instrument has been reduced by use of these component parts so that it fits into a regular size cigarette package.

Can you remember Duffy's Malt Whiskey and Dillingham's Plant Juice?

And how about Dr. Munyan's Remedies—and his picture, in which he held his forefinger aloft and proclaimed "There is hope!" The phrase became a national expression.

Contemporary were Peruna and Swamp Root; which was heralded in a jingle which we chanted when kids: "His Swamp Root, ocean weed, consumption oil and pills, Doctor Kilmer's remedies will cure you of your ills."

Dillingham's Plant Juice had a unique clientele, part of whom didn't know why they liked it and the other part wouldn't admit why. Alcohol was the base of many of the elixirs and tonics of a half century ago. Duffy's Malt Whiskey was not sold at bars. It was sold as a medicine and tonic, but did come clean in name as a whiskey. One of the testimonials on its wrapper proclaimed it "the main cause of longevity in this country."

IT WAS a "good old days" gabfest with a group of newspaper advertising men which started this train of thought. They're a modest, unassuming lot; so much so that they will trace the demise of almost any product to its lack of newspaper advertising.

Having been one of them for years I can agree as to many products which gained fame and fortune by the newspaper route, then tried to coast on their reputation, switched to other mediums, or died when denied newspaper space.

Often however it was the better advertising of a competing product or a revolution in the habits of the people which made once well-known things disappear from the market.

There was Rising Sun Stove Polish, a must in every Gay 90s kitchen. One old ad lamented the passing of this once-steady customer but admitted more lineage in one issue for enameled table top stoves than he carried in a year for stove polish. And the old-timer who bemoaned the passing of buggy whips, corn cob pipes and snuff didn't even get a nostalgic hearing.

MOST SMOKERS once smoked cigars, pipes or stogies. Few women smoked, save very old lady pipe addicts. The minority who used cigarettes mostly smoked Turkish brands, which were many: Turkish Trophies, Naturals, Murad, Mecca, Rameses, Egyptian Deities, Ramleh and Helmar, which is Ramleh spelled backward. Lucky Strike originally was a pipe tobacco. Sweet Caporal was the most used domestic tobacco cigarette.

The smokers' choice of smokes may have changed with the habits of the people, but it was advertising that changed the habits. To this day advertising determines the brands of cigarettes which shall be the leaders.

AMONG THE FOOD ITEMS, the gabfest recalled some forgotten names; many forgotten because more intelligently advertised products pushed them off grocery shelves.

Arbuckle's Lion Brand Coffee immediately came to mind. That was a premium-giving coffee which became a best seller. But it flopped in competition with straight value newspaper advertising of non-premium brands, and its train loads of banner-bedecked cars ceased to roll across the country.

The advertising boys thought of many old friends: Pearline, Sapolio, Gold Dust, which were cleaners; Force, a cereal; Cascarets, a laxative; Ingersoll and Waterbury watches; Moxie, Teddy Roosevelt's favorite drink; Cottolene, a shortening; Rubifoam, Sozodent, tooth cleaners; Densmore, Hammond and Oliver typewriters and the Smith-Premier with a double keyboard; Columbia, Victor and Lovell Diamond bicycles; Edison, Sonora and Pathe phonographs.

ADVERTISERS KNOW that women buy directly or influence the buying of 80 per cent of all advertised merchandise. Their likes and dislikes determine more sales of men's clothes than are determined by men themselves. They almost completely control the choice in food purchases, furniture and household items. The approval of women is essential to advertising success.

From automobiles to clothes pins today's newspaper advertising columns are pitched to woman's predominant buying influence; are educational in modern trends; almost encyclopedic in completeness and are the watchdog of the family pocketbook.

UN AGENCY SUPPLIES FOOD—AND HOPE—A young boy in Vienna, Austria, sits completely oblivious to his surroundings. He has only one thought in mind—food. The little girl at Havrana, Slovakia, thinks of food, too, as she drinks a happy toast—consisting of a cup of fresh milk—to the people who supplied it. The United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund gives a daily supplement of milk and other foods, plus medical care, to the school children of Europe. Most important of all, the agency gives hope for a better future to thousands of war-weary youngsters.

Where Sixty Minutes
Seem but Half an Hour!

DISTANCE isn't the only thing which passes swiftly when you sit at the wheel of a 1949 Cadillac. So does time!

You rest your hand on the beautiful steering wheel and press your toe—ever so lightly—against the obedient throttle . . . and you're off on a wonderful journey.

Your ride is free and easy and restful. You just sit—and relax—and enjoy the scenery—and the companionship of those about you. Conversation is as easy as if you were sitting in your own drawing room—for the car is so quiet you can hear the soft ticking of the electric clock.

The labor of driving is almost non-existent. The big powerful motor moves you in and out of traffic as if by automatic propulsion. Steering is little more than a response to your wish. Brakes are light to the touch and velvety-smooth in action.

You are as relaxed and care-free as the happy passengers around you. For you do little more than the thinking—and the car does the rest.

And then a familiar landmark looms in the distance. Can it be that you are there?

You look at the clock and you look at the speedometer—and, surely enough, the time and the distance have passed, and your journey is over.

Better come in and see for yourself that—when you sit at the wheel of a Cadillac—sixty minutes seem but half an hour!

Shirley May Says She Will Try Again In Summer of '50

New York, Sept 13 (AP)—Shirley May France said today she will try again next summer to swim the English Channel—and "I'm going to make it."

The 17-year-old Somerset, Mass., high school girl, who was pulled from the channel just short of her goal a week ago, arrived at LaGuardia Field from London shortly after midnight.

Commenting on her unsuccessful swim, she said "the tides didn't bother me. It was the coldness of the water."

"Next time, I'm going to start earlier," she told newsmen "If I had gone to England earlier this summer, I would have had my choice of some beautiful days on which to swim the channel."

She said she will start training shortly after Christmas for next year's attempt.

Shirley May was accompanied on the plane by her father, J. Walter France, and her coach, Harry Boudakian

Ted Worner, her manager, who was among those waiting at the airport, said arrangements for another cross-channel attempt next year have been made already.

Hope to Cut Home Costs

Denver (AP)—Twenty war veterans think they've figured out a way to beat the bugaboo of high construction costs. They've formed a corporation and bought a block of land Plans were drawn for brick homes with two or three bedrooms. C. B. Messenger, head of the vets' group, believes the houses will average $8,000 each to build. Moving-in day is some time next spring the veterans hope.

Dock Strike Talks Break Up; No Sign Of Early Peace

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—Peace talks in the Hawaiian dock strike have broken up in failure, and there is no sign of early settlement.

The U. S. Mediation and Conciliation Service, however, stood ready to try to help again if the chance arose.

Cyrus S. Ching, chief of the service, announced late yesterday that "the parties remain so hopelessly far apart in their thinking that further mediation at this time would be of no avail."

Ching, who had the negotiations shifted here, declared:

"I have assured both parties that the service will always be available to them in the event that we can again contribute toward settlement."

Spokesmen for the seven struck stevedoring companies and the C.I.O. International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union blamed each other for failure to settle the 136-day-old walkout during the five days of conferences here.

In Honolulu, Hawaiian Governor Ingram M. Stainback said he was "disappointed but not surprised" at the breakdown of negotiations. He did not elaborate.

Wilfred C. Tsukiyama, Republican president of the Hawaiian Senate, said in Honolulu that the failure of the talks might make official Washington more willing to use its power to intervene.

"At least," he said, "the people in Washington now know the difficulties we are confronted with."

Harry Bridges, president of the union, declared "the strike will go on."

The union submitted nine specific proposals for settlement, Bridges said, but "we have not received a single proposal from the employers."

W. Russell Starr, spokesman for the Hawaiian Employers Council which represented the struck firms, said:

"We sincerely regret that conciliation has failed. We will be ready to continue negotiations in Hawaii with the union whenever it wishes to do so. We hope that the union will be more realistic there."

The employers declared the economic life of the islands can be kept going despite the strike, and Starr said the walkout "steadily is becoming more of a token strike as commerce is restored."

The Hawaiian Government has seized the docks and taken over their operation under emergency legislation.

The Hayden Planetarium in New York city has 3,758,432 tiny holes drilled through its steel ceiling.

Safety Pennant Is Awarded

State and county officials were present at a clambake Saturday afternoon when state highway employes who work in Ulster county were awarded the District 8 safety pennant by S. T. Vosburgh, director of safety. In the front row, left to right, are Senator Arthur H. Wicks; J. S. Bixby, district engineer; H. G. Krom, county assistant engineer, and D. V. Z. Bogert, former county assistant engineer. State Highway Crews Have Excellent Record of Safety

New York State Department of Public Works highway maintenance men who work in Ulster county have attained a record of 132,200 man-hours of work on the state highways with only one lost time injury.

This fact was pointed out by S. T. Vosburgh, director of the State Department of Public Works Bureau of Safety, who presented the District 8 safety pennant to the Ulster county employes at a clambake Saturday afternoon.

Vosburgh told H. G. Krom, county assistant engineer, that the men "deserve a bouquet for safe workmanship and the men in charge certainly merit a great deal of credit."

The pennant was awarded as the result of a safety competition between the seven counties of District 8, of which J. S. Bixby is district engineer. Other counties in the district are Columbia, Dutchess, Putnam, Rockland, Orange and Westchester.

The bake was held at the department's lot on Quarry street. About 130 state employes and guests attended.

Among the guests present were Senator Arthur H. Wicks; Fred Stang, county attorney; James Loughran, county superintendent of highways; Thomas Fitzpatrick, safety engineer of Albany; William Reid, safety engineer of Poughkeepsie; J. S. Bixby, district engineer, and D. V. Z. Bogert, former county assistant engineer.

Diary of Unruh Is Being Examined

Camden, N. J., Sept. 13 (AP)—A notebook diary found in the room of Howard B. Unruh is being examined by New Jersey authorities seeking to shed further light on the River Road massacre of 13 persons.

Unruh, Bible-reading former artilleryman, is being held for examination at the New Jersey State Hospital for the Insane in Trenton.

Detectives disclosed yesterday a new search of Unruh's bedroom uncovered a notebook filled with dated entries.

The exact contents were not disclosed but detectives said most of the entries told of Unruh's social contacts with other men—some designated by first names and others only referred to as "a man."

Meanwhile, Police Judge John R. Di Mona ordered a psychiatric examination be made of an 18-year-old Camden boy, who telephoned police that he had "an urge to kill."

Judge Di Mona said the youth—identified as Walter Zakrzewski—appeared "terribly upset over something" when he was interviewed by the jurist.

In reply to a question, Zakrzewski declared his condition "had nothing to do with the Unruh case," Judge Di Mona said. The youth was committed to the Camden County Hospital, Lakewood, for 10 days' observation.

Barkley Is Tiring Of Questions About His Personal Life

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—Vice President Barkley is getting a little irked at all the questions about his personal life.

It isn't like the V. P. He has taken his bumps along with the rest of them and usually has managed to come up with a smile.

This time, however, there's a lady involved. The lady is Mrs. Carlton F. Hadley, attractive St. Louis widow and mother of two daughters. Some day she may elect to become Mrs. Barkley. Then, again, she may not.

All this has caused a lot of speculation. It gets Barkley out of bed at midnight now and then to deny a rumor that he is engaged, is about to become engaged or is about to marry Mrs. Hadley.

It keeps reporters meeting the plane every time he goes somewhere out of Washington.

Now the "Veep," as he calls himself, is a fun loving fellow, always quick with a joke. He can even take one on himself.

He also is a patient man, as he proved through long years of congressional battles.

But both his sense of humor and his patience with reporters, who are just about his favorite people, are wearing a little thin.

So far as his friendship with the lady is concerned, the Veep would like to become just an anonymous citizen.

So far as his best friends know, Barkley hasn't popped the question. That doesn't mean that he won't. And like every other swain, he isn't at all sure what the lady would say if he did.

It could even happen—but probably won't—when the Veep goes out to St. Louis for a quiet little party September 23 celebrating Mrs. Hadley's 38th birthday.

Barkley said he wants to go if the work of the Senate, over which he presides, doesn't interfere.

But he warned reporters not to draw any deductions. He classed as "without foundation" reports that there already is an understanding between him and Mrs. Hadley and that they will be married on the widow's birthday.

But when he gets there—if he goes—Barkley is resigned to the fact that reporters will be waiting with their questions when the plane lands.

He could, of course, avoid the reporters and their questions if he quit calling on Mrs. Hadley.

The odds look like a hundred to one against it.

Reports Jaw Injury

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 13 (AP)—Anthony Di Cola, 34, of West Springfield, was under treatment in Springfield Hospital today for a possible fractured jaw, suffered, he told police, in an argument over recent disorders at Peekskill, N. Y., after a Paul Robeson concert. Di Cola declined to bring a complaint, police said, contending his injuries, including a blackened eye, were suffered in a fair fight. The dispute occurred Sunday, Di Cola said, but he did not appear at the hospital until yesterday.

Home Owners Seldom Swayed by Communism

Saranac Inn, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—"Home owners are seldom swayed by Communism," the New York State Savings and Loan League was told today.

In a speech prepared for the group's 61st annual convention here, Oscar K. Kreutz of Washington, D. C., executive director of the National Savings and Loan League, declared:

"The Savings and Loan Association is a character builder. It teaches thrift to young and old and makes its practice easy. Thrift has always encouraged good citizenship. . . . Home owners are seldom swayed by Communism or other isms foreign to our democratic government."

M. Lyle Spencer, dean of the School of Journalism at Syracuse University, criticized public relations methods of the Savings and Loan groups. He recommended that the associations "dramatize their services" by telling the "haunting human incidents you have buried in your files."

FRESH LIVE LOBSTER THURSDAY

EAT WELL for Less

SCHOLARS NEED GOOD BREAKFAST

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

"Good morning children," is fine and dandy. But a good breakfast is vitally important, too.

Youngsters should get from 1/3 to ¼ of their needed total daily calories and other nutrients from breakfast. If they don't, fatigue at school, irritability and lack of attention may result.

Follow the basic breakfast pattern, recommended by pediatricians and nutritionists: fruit, wholegrain or reconstituted cereal (hot or ready-to-eat), whole wheat or enriched bread and butter, milk. To be doubly sure, include eggs and other proteins when possible. Especially for teen-agers. They need more food than any other age group.

Educators know that a good report card at the end of the month often starts with a good breakfast at the beginning of each day. So stick to the rule—1/3 to ¼ of the day's food at breakfast.

Here are two tested breakfast patterns for school children:

Breakfast: (A good breakfast children of early school age)—apple sauce, cornflakes, soft-cooked egg, whole wheat toast, milk or cocoa (coffee for adults).

Breakfast: (A good breakfast for teen-agers)—chilled orange juice, 40% bran flakes with sliced banana, scrambled eggs, buttered toast, marmalade, milk (coffee for adults).

Put variety in those "school bell" breakfasts. Try this golden brown fried wheat-meal with maple blended syrup.

Fried Wheat-Meal
(6 Servings)

One-half teaspoon salt, 2¾ cups boiling water, ¾ cup wheat-meal.

Add salt to boiling water in saucepan. Add cereal slowly, stirring constantly. Bring again to a boil and cook 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Pour into cold wet mold. Let stand overnight, or until cold and firm. Turn from pan. Slice in ¾-inch slices and saute in small amount of fat, turning to brown both sides. Serve with maple-blended syrup. Note: Left-over cooked wheat-meal may be used in this way.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: (Good for teen-agers)—Orange or tomato juice, fried wheat-meal, maple blended syrup, sausages, coffee (for adults), milk.

LUNCHEON: Broiled tomato slices on toast, cheese sauce, enriched bread, butter or fortified margarine, stewed pears, tea, milk.

DINNER: Tomato juice, pan-broiled ham slice, scalloped potatoes and onions, buttered celery with chopped parsley, apple pie, coffee, milk.

SCRATCHES
by
JAMES H. WINTERS

We might as well let you in on a few trade secrets as to how to remove small scratches and mars from your piano.

If they are only just light surface scratches, get a tube of Johnson's "BLEM" and apply according to directions. Should the scratches be deeper, and yet not down into the wood, the following procedure is to be followed—First, be sure what finish is on the instrument. If your piano is no older than twelve years it is, without a doubt, finished in lacquer. In this case get a small bottle of varnish remover and a very fine brush like a pencil point and, with a small amount of the remover on the brush, follow the line of the scratch or mar. This will melt the lacquer slightly and remove the defect. In the case of older instruments, which are finished in varnish, follow the same procedure with denatured alcohol. In the case of deeper mars a corresponding color of a good penetrating stain must be used to color in the exposed wood, then using the pencil point brush, flow in a bit of clear lacquer or shellac. Lacquer being used on the newer instruments and shellac on the older ones.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

REASON FOR RIBBONS

A bride sends this question: "It is not unusual in this town for people to come into the church to witness a wedding even though not invited. No one minds as the town is not large and most everyone has a rather personal interest in its brides. However, we do mind the way many of them then hurriedly leave after the ceremony before the families do. Wish you'd write about it."

This is the reason for running ribbons in front of the pews. As soon as the processional is ready to start, the ushers run "ribbons" up the length of the pews and tie them securely to keep the people from going out into the aisle as you describe. If no barrier is indicated the result is likely to be what you describe.

Who Writes First

Dear Mrs. Post: I've always believed that a boy should write to a girl first. But I think there could be an exception in my case. I'm here in a big city, studying, and plenty lonesome. There's a boy down home I'd like to keep as a friend, and if I don't let him know where I've settled, how can he write? My sister answers that he can get the address from them at home.

Answer: Under the circumstances I think it would be proper as well as natural to write him. If he doesn't answer that is another story!

Both Names Correct

Dear Mrs. Post: I've just had visiting cards made up and there has been a mistake. The engraver left out my first name and they read simply Mrs. Van Doren. He thought, however, that I could use them anyway as I am the oldest member of the family by this name. Is this true?

Answer: He is right as to the name's correctness. On the other hand, this does not cancel his obligation to give you the cards you ordered.

Hospitality to Friend's Friend

Dear Mrs. Post: When invited to a party in honor of a house guest, are we expected to invite the house guest and her hosts in return?

Answer: There is no obligation, but it is a very pleasing thing to do if you can, especially if the guest is staying with one of your own best friends.

Rain or shine, getting white wash really white is no great problem when you've got a bottle of Dazzle Bleach handy. Nothing takes the place of Dazzle Bleach for getting clothes "outdoors-fresh" and clean. And by the way, Dazzle has a new product that makes ironing a joy. It's Dazzle Liquid Starch and it comes in a bottle ready to use. Just add water. No cooking—no bluing or wax needed either! Remember Dazzle Liquid Starch the next time you go to your grocer's.

Merchants Say Shades Failed to Protect Goods

Claiming that amber sun shades which were purchased for the purpose of protecting merchandise in the window have failed to protect the goods and that merchandise displayed in the window has faded, Leon Greenberg and Leon C. Miller, doing business as Leon's Boys Shop on North Front street, are suing Alfred J. P. Seitz who conducts the Kingston Venetian Blind Company. The action was taken up for trial in County Court Monday afternoon before County Judge John M. Cashin and a jury.

Plaintiffs claim that they purchased sun shades in March 1948, which were installed at a cost of $151 to protect merchandise from the sun. They claim the blinds failed to do this and they now seek to recover damages. Included in the damages is the amount of loss suffered through the fading of merchandise. Abraham Streifer appears for the plaintiffs and Harry H. Flemming for the defendant.

The action is brought under an action for damages for breach of contract.

Evangelism Series Is Opened Sunday

"Everything that the Bible has prophesied concerning ancient history and events up to our times has come to pass," Evangelist R. K. Cemer, of the 20th Century Crusade for Christ, told an audience at the first of a series of evangelistic meetings, at the municipal auditorium Sunday night.

He keynoted the campaign with a sermon on the subject, Sabotaging the Peace, "merely spotting" the prophecies which, he said, would characterize future meetings. World peace is being sabotaged, the evangelist pointed out, and he read some statements made by Winston Churchill and Cordell Hull which revealed the specific nature of prophesied evils which were to break upon the world in the last days.

The speaker pointed out that we are now in the last days mentioned by Jesus, and that the signs which He gave that would mark His second coming are now plainly seen in the pattern of history. The evangelist enumerated the most outstanding of them.

Cemer reviewed some of the changes in the standards of living that have taken place in recent decades. He also stated that contrary to the belief of many the two books of Daniel and the Revelation can be plainly understood. "Prophecy," he explained, "gives life to the study of the whole Bible."

The next meeting is scheduled for Wednesday night at the Broadway auditorium. A special Bible study class will be held at 7 p. m. Wednesday evening's message will be "God's Last Warning Message."

City League baseball came to one of its most succesful and lavish conclusions in history last night at The Barn when more than 180 players, sponsors, league officials and guests paid tribute to the two top clubs—Jones Dairy and Chez Emile.

It was a brilliant affair with brief speeches and innumerable prizes handed out by President Jack Dawkins and Vice-President Tommy Davitt, who served as master of ceremonies.

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, President Dawkins and Dick McCarthy made brief speeches commending the merits of both players and sponsors who contributed to the 1949 campaign.

Mino Lauds League

The guest speaker for the evening was City Judge Ray Mino, who confessed he wasn't a ball player but that he was a follower of the national pastime.

Speaking in the baseball vernacular, Judge Mino said his local baseball record to date was "no hits, no runs, one error."

He explained this record by claiming he was a baseball fan. Secondly, he was pinch hitting for such promised but unobtainable big leaders like Willard Marshall, Sid Gordon and Johnny Mize. Furthermore, he said he was an ardent rooter for the New York Giants. He added that his allegiance to the Giants might be the cause of the one error in his personal boxscore.

The guest speaker praised everyone concerned with the league declaring their contacts with the circuit would mean building better and healthier bodies, minds and reasonable minds. "By your participation in baseball," he added, "you respect all men—regardless of race, color or creed."

Judge Mino also offered praise for the league in staging the recent benefit game for Carroll Morris and Johnny Berardi. "It was a wonderful gesture and demonstration," he said, "the people of Kingston will not forget it."

The Judge concluded his speech by reminding his listeners that they were doing a wonderful job and doing a job for their own community. "We appreciate it," he concluded.

The card:

Preliminaries

Baron Michelle Leone, Naples, Italy, vs. Steve Karas, Detroit, 30-minute time limit.

Big Abe Coleman, New York, vs. Joe Kameroff, Minsk, Russia, 30-minute time limit.

Williams, Robby Batting Leaders

Chicago, Sept. 13 (AP)—Boston's Ted Williams maintained a wide lead in the American League batting race today with .352 and also monopolized four special departments of play.

His .352 was a one point drop from a week ago. Second place George Kell of Detroit lost two points for .339 but was 20 points ahead of third place Bob Dillinger of St. Louis.

The newcomers to the Big 10 were Boston's Bobby Doerr who returned to the list with .305 to tie Johnny Pesky of Boston for seventh, and Hoot Evers of Detroit who notched .297 to tie St. Louis' Roy Sievers for 10th.

In fourth place with .314 was Boston's Dom Dimaggio.

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn takes an eight-point lead into the final three weeks of the National League batting title race with Enos Slaughter and Stan Musial of St. Louis closing fast.

Robinson's .347 is hardly safe with Slaughter batting .339 and Musial boosting his average another five points to .331. It's a three-way fight to the wire.

The Dodger sparkplug lost a point during the past week, according to averages including Sunday's games. Slaughter slipped a bit but Musial, with 10 hits in 22 at bats boosted his mark from .326 to .331. It wasn't long ago than Stan was struggling to get his nose above .300.

Colonial Playoffs Resume Tonight

(By The Associated Press)

Colonial League playoff contenders will attempt to resume their competition tonight with games at Waterbury and Stamford.

The game between Bristol and Waterbury scheduled for last night went into eclipse during batting practice when the Bristol lighting system failed and repairs could not be completed in time for the game to be played. Briston leads the Timers three games to one in the best-of-seven series and can clinch a spot in the final playoff by taking the Timers tonight at Waterbury.

At Stamford, the game between Bridgeport and Stamford was rained out in the top of the second inning. The Bees, who dropped the first two games and then came storming back to take the third and fourth contests, held a 3-0 lead when the rains came.

The teams will start all over again tonight at Stamford.

Fearless Frank Leahy and Willard Burke, a couple of prominent football coaches, who are stalwarts in their respective spheres, are politely pessimistic about 1949 prospects. At the worst this means you shouldn't risk a mortgage on the family homestead betting that neither of these football pundits enjoys a good season.

Leahy is said to be plagued by a lack of front line goons, while Burke has fair-to-middling material in each sector. It may seem a bit strange comparing Burke with Leahy, but in their own way they present a deadly parallel. In the national scope, Leahy and his Notre Dame legions represent the choicest morsel of football victory extant. In the Hudson valley, the slogan "Beat Burke" is an obsession that keeps more than one rival coach awake at night.

This man Burke has done a remarkable job of restoring the Maroon to the Hudson valley's football limelight. In three years as K.H.S. mentor, his teams have won 15 games while losing only four for a winning percentage of .789. The Maroon juggernauts have piled up 350 points against 128 for the opposition. The 332 markers during the 1948 campaign were an all-time Kingston and valley scholastic record.

When the hard hitting mentor was lured from Highland High to Kingston for a lucrative stipend in 1946, some of the tax-minded citizens howled that Bill was being overpaid. Most of the other folks never gave the salary issue a second thought. They were joyous, almost delirious, that Kingston was getting a top-notch football coach, a luxury that had been denied them for many years.

If Burke was brought to Kingston to mould DUSO football champions, the cold statistics point up his deadly efficiency. He has won two DUSO titles and missed a third because of stupid officiating in a crucial contest at Port Jervis.

The 1946 campaign should have sold anybody on Burke's ability to get the best out of the material at hand. (And in the meantime, leave us not overlook the magnificent work of his assistant, Russ Cunningham). His first season started with a 24-0 triumph over a pathetically weak Haverstraw squad. Pennant ideas were quickly erased by a 27-13 jolting by Highland and a 31-7 pasting by Middletown High.

Instead of folding, the K.H.S. footballers staged one of the most remarkable comebacks in Maroon history. They swept the next five games in a row and brought home the DUSO title. It is not easy to forget the weird 1947 campaign in which Kingston won two, lost one and tied four. That was the year of the scoring dreuth. While Kingston collected 31 points, the opposition mustered only 24.

That was the year, too, that Burke checked the Highland scourge, 0-0, and the La Falconen's domination of Kingston started going in the other direction. Scoreless ties with Port Jervis and Middletown also marked the drab season. The only consolation for Kingston fans was the fact that if Kingston wasn't scoring, the opponents were doing less.

You all know the 1948 story. The highest scoring aggregation in Hudson valley scholastic history murdered six consecutive opponents and then crushed, 6-13, against Port Jervis. The punishing Kingston ground attack made the old grads drool. How Port Jervis ever contrived to beat Kingston was the puzzle of the century. But they did, emphatically. Did Kingston fold? Of course not, they came right back and walloped Newburgh Academy, 26 to 7, in a thrilling Thanksgiving Day finale with the DUSO title at stake. That was one of the great games in the long K.H.S.-N.F.A. rivalry and didn't come half as easily as the lopsided score might indicate. Ask anybody who saw it.

* * *

So we get back to Leahy and Burke. The chances are both will have a good season, if not a championship. Burke may even get his 1949 edition keyed up enough to beat Newburgh!

$25,000 Trot

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—Ten horses will compete Thursday night in the fourth annual $25,000 Invitational American Trotting championship before an anticipated crowd of 25,000 at Roosevelt Raceway. Proximity, the queen trotter of modern day performers and runnerup for the 1948 diadem and winner of the championship in track record time of 2:02 2/5 in 1947, looms favorite because of her long string of victories.

Joe Page and Ted Wilks Hold Key To Yankee, Card Pennant Hopes

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Joe Page and Ted Wilks, baseball's celebrated firemen, loom as key men in the stretch drive of the favored New York Yankees and St. Louis Cards

The team standings and schedule give the Yanks the edge but only as long as Page and Wilks continue to produce Each has appeared in 51 games.

As the Yanks and Cards move into the final three weeks of the season with the opening today of the last intersectional series the relief aces figure to tell the story

New York, out front by three full games after Sunday's double win while Boston was dropping two, used Page in five of its 11 September games three times he helped Tommy Byrne out of trouble. He saved Allie Reynolds and Fred Sanford once each.

Manager Casey Stengel may have to call on Smoky Joe today After Eddie Lopat pitches the opener against the St. Louis Browns, Casey has selected Rookie Wally Hood to pitch the second game. Hood, a recent Kansas City grad, will be getting his first major league starting test

Return of Yogi Berra to home run hitting form was a tremendous boost to Yank morale. They got another lift from Tommy Henrich, injured first baseman-outfielder, who again is taking batting practice and insists he's "ready."

But most important is Page who saved three big games in the last five days.

Boston Desperate

While the Yanks play a pair with the Brownies, the desperate Boston Red Sox must take on the steaming Detroit club. Winners of 10 straight and 18 of their last 20, the Tigers invade the east for the last time, intent on becoming a pennant factor. Time is fast running out on all Yankee chasers but particularly for Detroit which has only 14 to play and trails by 5½ games. They are eight back on the important losing side.

Joe McCarthy's Red Sox, to keep their hopes alive, must gain ground during the seven-game homestand against the west. When they must knock off the Yanks in the five games still to be played between the two clubs

Cleveland's chances of repeating as world champs are even more dim than Detroit's. The Tribe, fourth by six games, plays only 3 of its last 17 at home The Yanks play 15 of 19 at the Yankee Stadium and the Red Sox nine of 15 at Fenway Park where they have been terrific

In the National the slugging of Stan Musial and Enos Slaughter and the efficient relief work of Wilks (11-3) have given the Cards a 1½ game edge over the Dodgers.

Wilks has been bumped in his last few outings but the St Louis staff required his strong right arm in four of its last nine games

Grace Lenczyk Upset by Texan

Ardmore, Pa, Sept. 13 (AP)—A little Texas gal with a winning smile and a big heart kept a nine year jinx going in the U S. Women's Amateur golf championship

Pretty Joanne Barr Tracy, an unknown lady of the links from Dallas, spoiled sturdy Grace Lenczyk's 22nd birthday yesterday by eliminating the defending amateur champion, 1 up in the first round of the 1949 U S G A. tournament.

The jinx Mrs Tracy upheld was the failure of any women's amateur queen to repeat since Betty Jameson won in 1939 and '40

The 26-year-old mother of a two and a half year old girl was the most surprised person on the historic Merion Golf Club course when she holed a three foot putt on the 18th green to win an impressive match in her first national tournament.

"Golly," she said, "I never thought I could do it. When I drew Miss Lenczyk for my opening round I kinda' thought this would be a golf lesson for me"

A Ball Player's Ball Player

Have you ever heard this expression used? For the benefit of the 'Initiate,' there are ball players that never make the headlines but their managers would be utterly at sea without their services

Take little Phil Rizutti of the Yankees He never got enough votes to make the All Star game but a poll of every American League manager rates him as the No 1 shortstop in their book Even Lou Boudreau, of whom there is no whomer, rates little Phil as the most underrated player in his book

The same thing holds true in the Men's Clothing field There are so many National Brands made famous by radio and press and magazines and these names are glamorized in the consumer's minds But among Clothing Retailers all over, Clothcraft is then personal choice for Value plus, . . styling, . . . and quality

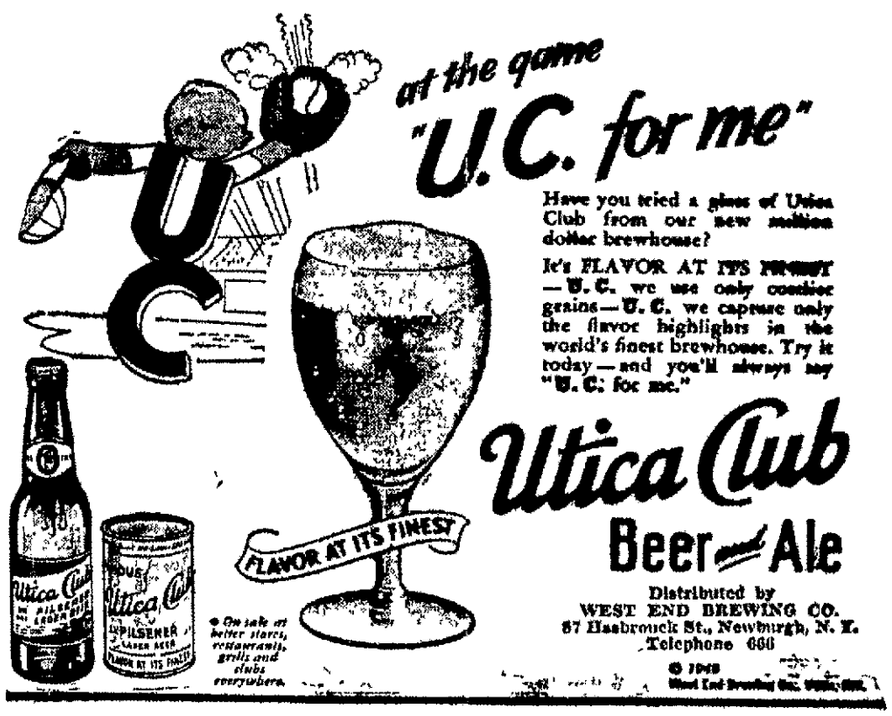

The Ball Player's Ball Player in the Men's Suit and Topcoat field is Clothcraft,—and has been for 101 years

Benton, Ill. (AP)—Is your town trying to rid downtown buildings of pesky pigeons or other fowl? Some have tried metal owls traps and loud "boos" But two Benton men believe they've solved it an easy way When officials refused a permit killing the pigeons, they took a leaf from Mr Farmer's book. A few pieces of wood, a hat and a pair of white overalls made a "scare-pigeon" which waves menacingly from atop their building They claim it works

Thefts Reported To Kingston Police

The theft of a $50 drill and chuck was one of several reports of minor thefts and damage received by police Monday afternoon.

A utility electric drill and a Jacobs New Departure chuck was taken some time last week from the factory of Hudson Woolens, Inc., 482 Albany avenue, it was reported at 2:30 p. m. Monday by Martin Silver of Beacon, president of Hudson Woolens. Silver said entrance had been gained to the building by "jimmying" the rear door. He valued the missing items at $50.

At 3:30 p. m. Monday, John Thompson of 109 Fair street, a school student, told police his bicycle had been taken during the afternoon from the rack at the Myron J. Michael School. A later notation on the police records stated the bicycle was recovered one block away from where it had been taken.

The theft of a new ash can from the street in front of the residence of Nathan L. Feldman at 110 Wall street was reported at 7:30. The ash can has not been recovered, according to the police report.

Two complaints were received Monday from contractors stating that unidentified boys were entering houses under construction and causing "considerable damage daily," police said. One house is located at the corner of Foxhall avenue and Stanley street and the other behind the New York State Armory on Manor avenue.

Auto Dealers Elect Officers at Meeting

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—George D. Gardner of Binghamton is the new president of the New York State Automobile Dealers, Inc., succeeding Thomas H. McElvein, Jr., of Buffalo.

Re-elected yesterday during the group's 26th annual convention, were Harry M. Williams of New York city, first vice president; Ralph W. Austin of Jamestown, secretary, and Charles Godlove of Albany, treasurer.

Albert Richard of Poughkeepsie was elected second vice president; William Frame of Mincola, third vice president, and William Herpich of Rochester, assistant treasurer.

The following were elected directors for three years:

E. D. Beckwith, Binghamton; F. A. Mason, Malone; A. H. Livermore, Albany; William Meyer, Brooklyn; H. M. Stanton, Middletown; Frame; Leo Walker, Horseheads; S. J. Reynolds, Syracuse; Richard, and Sam Giles, Port Jefferson.

Steel Truce Sends Stocks on Upgrade

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—The stock market advanced briskly today in response to the steel strike truce.

Prices were up by a few cents to around a dollar a share among leading issues. Buying was concentrated in steel issues with some of the oil and motor shares also gaining attention.

Contributing to buying enthusiasm was the Anglo-American agreement pointed toward solving British empire economic ills. Traders felt international business would be accelerated under the plan.

Among stocks higher were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, General Motors, Chrysler, and Standard Oil (N. J.).

Steel Strike Threat

power to make recommendations. The recommendations are not binding.

The board's report, issued last Saturday, suggested workers forego a wage increase. It proposed that both sides agree to a 10-cent hourly increase package covering insurance and pensions. The union sought a 30-cent package which included 12½ cents more pay.

The steelworkers decision followed day-long meetings yesterday of the union executive board and wage policy committee. The acceptances were made in the form of a resolution which was adopted unanimously by the 170-man committee.

'With Profound Regret'

Philip Murray, C.I.O. and United Steelworker president, telegraphed Mr. Truman that he gave up the wage demand "with profound regret." Murray said he agreed with the board recommendations "in the interest of concluding a prompt settlement."

Union members appeared entirely happy about the whole thing even though it meant no pay raises. They regarded board approval of $100 a month pensions as a major victory.

The Steelworkers' decision prompted Inland Steel Company of Chicago to halt shutdown operations in its Indiana Harbor, Ind., works.

Inland had banked three blast furnaces and laid off about 200 workers in anticipation of a strike.

The Steelworkers' decision to forget a wage increase may dash the hopes of millions of workers in other industries for more money this year.

Negotiations in the auto, rubber, electrical appliance and other industries have been marking time for weeks, waiting to see what would happen in the steel dispute.

John L. Lewis' marathon coal talks also might be speeded up by a quick steel settlement.

Fifth Trial Defendant Is Jailed for Contempt

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—A fifth defendant at the Communist conspiracy trial has been jailed for contempt of court.

Carl Winter, Michigan state chairman of the Communist Party, was sentenced to 30 days yesterday for refusal to answer a question.

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina ordered that Winter will have to remain in jail between court sessions instead of remaining free in bail.

The judge found Winter "guilty of wilful and deliberate contempt."

Winter had refused to answer a prosecution question about whether his father-in-law, Alfred Wagenknecht, spoke at a 1945 Communist convention.

The defendant, on the witness stand in his own defense, said that answering the question would be a "violation of my conscience and my principles."

Winter, one of eleven top Communists leaders on trial on charges of conspiracy to advocate violent overthrow of the government, was under cross-examination by government counsel.

Three othr defendants in the trial—now almost eight months old—already were overnight jail lodgers for the duration of the trial. They are Gus Hall, Henry Winston and Gilbert Green.

Defendant John Gates, editor of The Daily Worker, went to jail last June 3 and was released after serving 30 days for contempt. Hall and Winston were jailed for their loud protests against Gates' sentence. Green was sent to jail on June 20 for a contemptuous remark.

As Winter was sentenced, pickets outside the Federal building were parading with banners demanding the release of the defendants already jailed.

The 75 pickets, from Southern Illinois, later added new cries to their demonstration:

"Free Carl Winter. Stop this frameup."

Will Discuss Wages

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—The status of wage talks affecting 200,000 employes of the General Electric Company and Westinghouse Electric Corporation in several states will be discussed here today by C.I.O. union negotiators. About 30 members of G-E and Westinghouse committees of the C.I.O. United Electrical workers will meet in joint session, union President Albert J. Fitzgerald said. Negotiations between the union and the two companies, leaders in the industry, were stalled two months ago.

Wallace Says Welfare State Should Be Goal

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—Henry A. Wallace said last night "a welfare state should be the goal of everyone who calls himself a Liberal."

But this cannot be achieved by "police state" methods, the Progressive Party leader declared.

The former vice president addressed 1,200 persons at a dinner in the Hotel Astor marking the third anniversary of his "end the cold war" speech which led to his resignation as secretary of commerce.

"Whether we like it or not," he said, "we have come to the time of the welfare state, which simply means that government must plan to conserve its soil, its timber, its mineral resources, and—above all—its precious human energies."

Referring to what he called "police state" possibilities, Wallace condemned the recent riotous outbreak near Peekskill, N. Y., touched off by a concert by Paul Robeson, leftwing negro singer.

Wallace blamed President Truman and former Attorney General Tom Clark—now a Supreme Court justice—and said both "set the tone of hatred in this country in conformity with the lowest and basest prejudices."

Wallace also blamed the police, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and unnamed newspapers for the rioting.

Robeson and Rep. Vito Marcantonio, left wing American Labor Party congressman from New York, suggested in speeches at the dinner that Wallace might run for president again in 1952.

Robeson told the gathering that he loves the United States very much, and spoke of "the American democracy to which I have always been loyal and to which I always shall be loyal."

The singer said he would stand with any one fighting for freedom and that, he declared, includes the 11 top Communist leaders on trial in federal court here on charges of conspiracy to advocate violent overthrow of the government.

Would Reverse Convictions

Boston, Sept. 13 (AP) — The Massachusetts Legislature has been asked to reverse the convictions of 21 persons hanged 257 years ago. The action would absolve 16 women and five men accused of witchcraft in Salem in 1692. They were hanged between June and September of that year. Rep. Daniel Rudsten (D-Boston) filed the resolve yesterday. He was not available for comment.

Thefts Reported To Kingston Police

The theft of a $50 drill and chuck was one of several reports of minor thefts and damage received by police Monday afternoon.

A utility electric drill and a Jacobs New Departure chuck was taken some time last week from the factory of Hudson Woolens, Inc., 482 Albany avenue, it was reported at 2:30 p. m. Monday by Martin Silver of Beacon, president of Hudson Woolens Silver said entrance had been gained to the building by "jimmying" the rear door. He valued the missing items at $50.

At 3:30 p. m. Monday, John Thompson of 109 Fair street, a school student, told police his bicycle had been taken during the afternoon from the rack at the Myron J. Michael School. A later notation on the police records stated the bicycle was recovered one block away from where it had been taken.

The theft of a new ash can from the street in front of the residence of Nathan L. Feldman at 110 Wall street was reported at 7:30. The ash can has not been recovered, according to the police report.

Two complaints were received Monday from contractors stating that unidentified boys were entering houses under construction and causing "considerable damage daily," police said. One house is located at the corner of Foxhall avenue and Stanley street and the other behind the New York State Armory on Manor avenue.

Steel Truce Sends Stocks on Upgrade

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—The stock market advanced briskly today in response to the steel strike truce.

Prices were up by a few cents to around a dollar a share among leading issues. Buying was concentrated in steel issues with some of the oil and motor shares also gaining attention.

Contributing to buying enthusiasm was the Anglo-American agreement pointed toward solving British empire economic ills. Traders felt international business would be accelerated under the plan.

Among stocks higher were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, General Motors, Chrysler, and Standard Oil (N. J.).

Steel Strike Threat

power to make recommendations. The recommendations are not binding.

The board's report, issued last Saturday, suggested workers forego a wage increase. It proposed that both sides agree to a 10-cent hourly increase package covering insurance and pensions. The union sought a 30-cent package which included 12½ cents more pay.

The steelworkers decision followed day-long meetings yesterday of the union executive board and wage policy committee. The acceptances were made in the form of a resolution which was adopted unanimously by the 170-man committee.

'With Profound Regret'

Philip Murray, CIO and United Steelworker president, telegraphed Mr. Truman that he gave up the wage demand "with profound regret." Murray said he agreed with the board recommendations "in the interest of concluding a prompt settlement."

Union members appeared entirely happy about the whole thing even though it meant no pay raises. They regarded board approval of $100 a month pensions as a major victory.

The Steelworkers' decision prompted Inland Steel Company of Chicago to halt shutdown operations in its Indiana Harbor, Ind., works.

Inland had banked three blast furnaces and laid off about 200 workers in anticipation of a strike.

The Steelworkers' decision to forget a wage increase may dash the hopes of millions of workers in other industries for more money this year.

Negotiations in the auto, rubber, electrical appliance and other industries have been marking time for weeks, waiting to see what would happen in the steel dispute.

John L. Lewis' marathon coal talks also might be speeded up by a quick steel settlement.

Fifth Trial Defendant Is Jailed for Contempt

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—A fifth defendant at the Communist conspiracy trial has been jailed for contempt of court.

Carl Winter, Michigan state chairman of the Communist Party, was sentenced to 30 days yesterday for refusal to answer a question.

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina ordered that Winter will have to remain in jail between court sessions instead of remaining free in bail.

The judge found Winter "guilty of wilful and deliberate contempt."

Winter had refused to answer a prosecution question about whether his father-in-law, Alfred Wagenknecht, spoke at a 1945 Communist convention.

The defendant, on the witness stand in his own defense, said that answering the question would be a "violation of my conscience and my principles."

Winter, one of eleven top Communists leaders on trial on charges of conspiracy to advocate violent overthrow of the government, was under cross-examination by government counsel.

Three othr defendants in the trial—now almost eight months old—already were overnight jail lodgers for the duration of the trial. They are Gus Hall, Henry Winston and Gilbert Green.

Defendant John Gates, editor of The Daily Worker, went to jail last June 3 and was released after serving 30 days for contempt. Hall and Winston were jailed for their loud protests against Gates' sentence. Green was sent to jail on June 20 for a contemptuous remark.

As Winter was sentenced, pickets outside the Federal building were parading with banners demanding the release of the defendants already jailed.

The 75 pickets, from Southern Illinois, later added new cries to their demonstration:

"Free Carl Winter. Stop this frameup."

Will Discuss Wages

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—The status of wage talks affecting 200,000 employes of the General Electric Company and Westinghouse Electric Corporation in several states will be discussed here today by C.I.O. union negotiators. About 30 members of G-E and Westinghouse committees of the C.I.O. United Electrical workers will meet in joint session, union President Albert J. Fitzgerald said. Negotiations between the union and the two companies, leaders in the industry, were stalled two months ago.

Wallace Says Welfare State Should Be Goal

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—Henry A. Wallace said last night "a welfare state should be the goal of everyone who calls himself a Liberal."

But this cannot be achieved by "police state" methods, the Progressive Party leader declared.

The former vice president addressed 1,200 persons at a dinner in the Hotel Astor marking the third anniversary of his "end the cold war" speech which led to his resignation as secretary of commerce.

"Whether we like it or not," he said, "we have come to the time of the welfare state, which simply means that government must plan to conserve its soil, its timber, its mineral resources, and—above all—its precious human energies."

Referring to what he called "police state" possibilities, Wallace condemned the recent riotous outbreak near Peekskill, N. Y., touched off by a concert by Paul Robeson, leftwing negro singer.

Wallace blamed President Truman and former Attorney General Tom Clark—now a Supreme Court justice—and said both "set the tone of hatred in this country in conformity with the lowest and basest prejudices."

Wallace also blamed the police, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and unnamed newspapers for the rioting.

Robeson and Rep. Vito Marcantonio, left wing American Labor Party congressman from New York, suggested in speeches at the dinner that Wallace might run for president again in 1952.

Robeson told the gathering that he loves the United States very much, and spoke of "the American democracy to which I have always been loyal and to which I always shall be loyal."

The singer said he would stand with any one fighting for freedom and that, he declared, includes the 11 top Communist leaders on trial in federal court here on charges of conspiracy to advocate violent overthrow of the government.

Would Reverse Convictions

Boston, Sept. 13 (AP) — The Massachusetts Legislature has been asked to reverse the convictions of 21 persons hanged 257 years ago. The action would absolve 16 women and five men accused of witchcraft in Salem in 1692. They were hanged between June and September of that year. Rep. Daniel Rudstein (D-Boston) filed the resolve yesterday. He was not available for comment.

Brennan Boy's . . .

bringing his body to Delaware for burial in the same pigpen and then in the dump.

The Schulz death is not involved in the present trial.

Dover's Court of Oyer and Terminer was crowded at the opening of the trial yesterday under old English procedure to which Delaware still adheres.

Spear-carrying tipstaffs escorted Mrs. Brennan and her son to the dock with both defendants handcuffed.

The spear heads are painted red on one side and white on the other. The white side—representing the presumed innocence of the prisoners—is held toward the court during trial. In the event of a conviction, the red side of each spear will be turned outward.

Mrs. Brennan, according to state police, said in her statements that she met both Wooldridge and Schulz through "lonely hearts" correspondence after they had answered her ads in a magazine.

Another Brennan son, George, 17, held as a accessory in Wooldridge's death, was re-arrested yesterday after Mayor William Storey told the court a Dover restaurant operator was withdrawing the $5,000 bail he had supplied the youth.

Chief Justice Charles S. Richards ordered George committed to the county jail pending the posting of new bail.

A third son, Raymond, 23, is also under bail as an accessory in the case. Both he and George are to be brought to trial at a later date.

Smudge Damage Caused

An oil burner out of adjustment caused smudge damage to the second floor apartment of Ralph DuBois at 130 Jansen avenue at 8 p. m. Monday, the fire department reported. The apartment is located next door to the Central Fire Station and the alarm was called over verbally. Deputy Fire Chief George Matthews and Firemen James Hutton and Edwin Van Etten responded and cut down the excessive flow of oil, which was causing the oil space heater to smoke.

Police Have Bicycle

A green colored boy's bicycle which had been left near the city dump at Sterling street three days ago was brought Monday afternoon to police headquarters, where it may be claimed by its owner.

SPEAR-BEARERS ESCORT DEFENDANTS

Tipstaffs, carrying ten-foot spears with red and white points, escort Mrs. Inez Gertrude Brennan, 45, manacled to her son, Robert, 16, as the two "lonely hearts" defendants left Dover, Del., courthouse during a recess. They are on trial for the slaying of Wade Woolridge, 67, found dead on the Brennan farm after a mail courtship with the woman. White side of spears is turned out at start of trial, presuming innocence of defendants, and red side turned outward later should they be found guilty. (A.P. Wirephoto)

Basch and Gildersleeve were tie with 16 seconds but on the run-off both increased time and Gildersleeve had a fault, which explains the scoring.

Relay Race—1st section with young riders in the ring—Hurley team defeated the Woodstock team. For the adult section ran on the outside track, Joseph Basch captained one team while Ferd Gildersleeve captained the opposing team. Gildersleeve's team won the race.

The Glasco Children's 32-piece band under Prof. Merola added much to the enjoyment of the day and the novelty parade through the village led by the young musicians. Unscheduled exhibitions were given by Harry Ostrander and Fred Reynolds with their draft horse teams, and Richard Bolen's solo. Bolen was a member of the band.

Excluding the horsemanship class, cash awards amounting to more than $200 were given for the various classes. The prizes for the stock and relay classes were increased through the generosity of Joseph Basch, Leon Smith and an anonymous donation.

On this occasion, the half-mile track on the outside of the ring was the scene of several races. The spectators were wildly enthusiastic about these particular events.

Dr. Paul Perlman, chairman of activities, and his large committee were complimented upon the success of the "Fun on Horseback" day.

Martin Is Elected Board Chairman

Woodstock, Sept. 13—Fletcher Martin was elected chairman of the Board of Directors, Woodstock Artists Association, at its annual meeting held in the gallery Friday. Also elected to the board were Arthur Zaldenberg, chairman of extension, and Anton Refregier, publicity chairman.

Those appointed at the Spring meeting to fill vacancies until the general meeting were elected to serve for one year. Included were Will Eisner, treasurer; Cecile Forman, corresponding secretary; and Denny Winters, membership chairman. Howard Mandell is vice-chairman; Edward Millman, recording secretary, and Ralph Wickheiser, chairman of finance.

The more than 100 members present heard reports of gallery activities during the season and learned that it was the biggest season yet had by the Woodstock Artists Association. Never before have so many persons attended the exhibitions and other features presented by the organization during the past months. Memberships, too, have increased considerably.

Later this week, the members of the board of directors will meet to formulate plans for next season.

THE MATURE MIND
by H. A. Overstreet

Do you consider yourself an exception to the human race and therefore deserving of special consideration?

Do you resist change and new ideas?

Are you unwilling to accept responsibility?

Are you self-excusing? Self-dramatizing?

Do you prefer not to add to your circle of acquaintances?

Are you unable to express your thoughts and feelings freely and fluently?

Do you deeply resent your daily grind of household or office chores?

These and other personality traits, according to Mr. Overstreet, mark you as having an immature mind.

However if, after a little self-analysis, you find you must answer "Yes" to most of those questions, do not be too discouraged since Mr. Overstreet states that it is his considered opinion that a very large percentage of us never grow up mentally, and never will.

He does tell us a great deal about what causes immaturity; how dangerous it can be to us and to the world and points out many ways in which we can help ourselves and particularly our children to attain some degree of maturity of mind. And he speaks with authority. Mr. Overstreet was for many years head of the Philosophy Department of City College. He has written many books upon similar subjects of which this is considered his best. It is a Book-of-the-Month selection for August.

It is a wonderful book for parents. It tells them how to avoid faults and fixations in the child which cause much trouble in later life. First, by keeping a careful check upon such things as tantrums; showing off; faults in speech such as stammering, stuttering, etc., whining; nagging; egocentricity and many others. Second, by helping the child to develop his sense of responsibility, his sense of orderliness, his social imagination, etc., and above everything else to watch your own attitude toward the child. Unwise handling of behavior problems as they arise, bickering between parents, bad manners, slovenly speech, inconsistency and unfairness, to name a few, are shown to cause a sense of insecurity in the child which can never be overcome—with appalling results. Mr. Overstreet says that discipline thoroughly mixed with love and understanding is the sure—the mature way for parents to act.

A strong plea is made for mature minds to help us deal with vital problems which concern us all, particularly with the key problem of our time, that of building "One World." As a nation, who showed intense and laudable interest in the United Nations at first but soon signs of immaturity began to show in our childish inability to sustain interest in it and our unwillingness to cope with its complexities because they baffled us. We fell back upon the old formula of nations in difficulties — that of starting to frighten one another, instead of trying to understand one another. That way lies the road to war. In this connection he quotes G. B. Chisholm as saying "So far in the history of the world there have never been enough mature people in the right places."

One quotation which well deserves consideration, "A person has to be mature to be worthy to raise issues. Many of the small frictions in life that destroy mutual confidence and enjoyment come from raising issues that are not worth raising; and most of the social inertias and timidities that keep our world from moving toward its ideals express a reluctance to raise issues that should be raised."

In his review of this book in the Atlantic Monthly, Edward Weeks calls it "A Mind Opener." It is truly that. A Must for every thoughtful person.

Yonkers Grandma Is City's Mayor

Yonkers, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—A crusading grandmother, who takes time out once a week to bake a batch of bread, is the new mayor of this Hudson river city, fifth largest in New York state.

She is Mrs. Edith P. Wolfy, once christened Yonkers' "Public Energy No. 1" because of her interest in civic affairs.

She became the city's first woman mayor yesterday on the basis of a recount of proportional representation votes cast in the 1947 election.

The recount was ordered after Mayor Curtiss Frank resigned effective September 1 to enter private business.

The city council candidate with the highest number of votes is declared mayor. And Mrs. Wolfy—with 20,587—clinched the job as 1947 runner-up.

A new mayor will be elected in November and take office January 1.
